NUNS ON TOUR—Among those to take early advantage of special tour of historical sites in Kingston arranged by Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce and its Convention and Business Committee, were 25 sisters from Maryknoll Order at Maryknoll, and five nuns from Dominican Sisters of the Sick and Poor, Ossining. They are shown as they toured Senate House on Thursday. This particular tour was arranged with cooperation of Mayor John J. Schwenk, whose daughter, Sister Marie Veronica, was among nuns making tour. Similar tour, which includes visits to Old Dutch Church, Senate House and Museum and historic homes in city, will be offered at 10 a. m. on Saturday to delegates attending 17th annual conference of New York State Association of Junior Colleges currently meeting at Governor Clinton Hotel. Thursday's tour by nuns also included visit to city hall and an opportunity for sisters to examine scale model of Urban Renewal Plan showing Kingston of the future. Nuns were guests of Mayor and Mrs. Schwenk for luncheon and dinner. (Freeman photo)

Conversion Of Plants Is Studied

Some in Cutback May Make Power

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nuclear explosives plants shut down by President Johnson's cutback in plutonium production may be converted into huge civilian electric power plants.

The Atomic Energy Commission considers the conversion to be technically feasible and has invited utility firms to undertake studies, at their own expense, of the economic and engineering problems involved.

Two Are Offered

Two reactors soon to be withdrawn from producing plutonium — one at AEC's Hanford, Wash., installation and the other at Savannah River, S.C. — have been offered for commercial power generation.

An AEC official said the two have the capability of delivering "many hundreds of megawatts" of electric power — that is, many hundreds of millions of watts — if the shift to peaceful use can be carried through.

This would suggest a capacity larger than any of the 13 nuclear plants now producing commercial power.

$400,000 for Study

At Savannah River, one group of 11 Southern utility companies has signed an agreement with AEC to invest $300,000 to $400,000 in studying the feasibility of taking over the heavy - water type reactor scheduled to be shut down about July 1.

Two other groups have indicated interest in this reactor, one of them representing a number of rural electrical coops.

The AEC has invited private and public utilities in the Pacific Northwest to undertake similar feasibility studies at the

Will Side With Fidel If Attacked

Rights Violated, Izvestia Declares

MOSCOW (AP) — Izvestia declared today the Soviet Union will side with Cuba if the controversy about U.S. reconnaissance flights leads to "a "treacherous attack" on that island nation.

The U.S. military flights over Cuba were denounced as violations of sovereign rights of an independent state, the U.N. charter and "generally recognized standards of international law."

Has Inalienable Rights

The Soviet government newspaper declared in an article signed by "Commentator," which means someone in high authority, that Cuba has an inalienable right "to take the necessary measures to put an end to the intrusions."

"Gentlemen, do not try to intimidate us," it said. "If Cuba is subjected to a treacherous attack, the Soviet Union will not put up with it and will side with Cuba. It has declared this before and confirms this now."

Dates Back to 1962

The dispute, which flared in Havana and Washington this week, goes back to the missile crisis of October 1962.

U.S. Air Force and Marine pilots have been keeping watch since to see that no new offensive missiles are moved in to replace the medium - range rockets that the Soviet Union withdrew under American pressure.

Prime Minister Fidel Castro declared in a speech Sunday night that Cuba no longer would tolerate violations of its airspace by U.S. planes.

His government demanded in a note to Washington, relayed via the Swiss Embassy in Havana, that the surveillance flights be ended. The U.S. State Department stood pat.

Trips Essential: LBJ

President Johnson said Tuesday it is essential that the United States maintain the flights to determine whether any new offensive missiles are being installed in Cuba. He warned at an impromptu news conference in the White House rose garden that any effort to install such missiles would be a very serious matter.

Subsequently the Pentagon disclosed that 16 American pilots—12 Air Force officers and four Marines—have been decorated for their aerial activity over Cuba in the last 18 months.

The U.S. view is that Cuba rejected ground inspections demanded by the late President John F. Kennedy's administration, even though the Soviet Union had urged Castro to accept them, and that the reconnaissance flights are a necessary substitute.

$68 Million Annual Savings

Defense Chief Reports 63 Closings, Cutbacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara today announced 63 new actions closing or reducing military bases, depots and arsenals and consolidating offices. He estimated savings at $68 million a year.

Eight Facilities Going

McNamara said slicing away at least eight unneeded facilities, scaling down 14 others, combining separate contract monitoring offices in 29 cities, and other actions would yield savings "without in any way reducing military effectiveness."

These latest moves in a three-year economy drive, now embraced by President Johnson, bring the number of bases ordered closed or reduced to more than 500.

When added to those other moves, the Pentagon said, the 63 new actions will:

Save $551 million a year in operating costs.

Eliminate 81,600 civilian jobs and military assignments. Of these 10,056 will drop away as a result of today's actions.

Release 696,000 acres of real estate for nondefense use.

Make available 61 industrial plants for sale to American business.

55 Effect 29 States

Fifty-five of the new actions announced by McNamara at a news conference affect military activities in 29 states.

The primary emphasis is on consolidating — one to a city—the separate contract supervision offices maintained by the Army, Navy, Air Force and Defense Supply Agency in many places. That is to be done in two years.

The combining of these offices in 29 cities is expected to lop off 1,800 workers and save $18.8 million a year.

For the time being at least, the Navy's 11 shipyards, major Air Force and Army bases were left untouched.

The other eight actions — worth $21 million a year in savings — involve unspecified installations overseas. What will happen to them was left open, pending consultation with European and Western Hemisphere governments concerned. No NATO forces are affected.

McNamara said in Boston last week it would take him six months to determine which of 11 naval shipyards will be closed because of heavy costs and excess capacity.

The last time the defense chief announced any base closings was last Dec. 12. The announcement came amid considerable political commotion that reportedly won reprieves for some bases, including a couple of the Navy yards.

All but Seven in U.S.

On that occasion, 33 bases were tapped for shutdown or substantial reduction over a period of 3½ years. All but seven are in the United States.

Up to today's actions, the Pentagon reported, 494 major installations had been ordered closed or reduced, with annual savings pegged at $485 million.

McNamara estimated last winter that the base trimmings then contemplated would cut 70,000 civilian workers from the rolls.

It has been Pentagon policy to absorb as much of the worker reductions as possible through attrition and a freeze on hiring at other installations.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department said Thursday night that Maj. Gen. Richard G. Stilwell has been named chief of staff of the U.S. Military Assistance Command in South Viet Nam.

Stilwell succeeds Marine Maj. Gen. Richard G. Weede, who will return to Washington next month for duty at Marine Corps headquarters.

Committee Is For Ban on Milk Pricing

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—A special committee named by Gov. Rockefeller to look into milk-marketing called today for a ban on unfair price discrimination in the sale of milk as a means of preventing price wars.

The committee also came out against any form of price-fixing in the sale of milk, either retail or wholesale.

Reports Today

The Governor's Committee on Milk Marketing, appointed by Rockefeller two years ago, submitted its report today.

The eight - member study group is headed by Prof. Glenn W. Hedlund, chairman of the Agricultural Economics Department at Cornell University.

Recommendations

Besides urging a ban on unfair price discrimination and rejecting price-fixing, the committee recommended that:

1-The agriculture commissioner be required, through fact-finding and educational programs, to "encourage fair and active competition" in milk distribution and discourage "unfair or destructive practices" that tend to lessen competition and increase the possibility of monopolistic abuses.

2-The agriculture commissioner be required to investigate complaints or instances of monopolistic abuse and report his findings to the attorney general.

3-The Agriculture Department follow a policy of licensing qualified milk dealers to encourage competition and adoption of

Can't Shift Cuba Policy Says Ball

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — Undersecretary of State George W. Ball says U.S. policy toward Communist Cuba must fall within a narrow limit — between war, which Washington rejects, and negotiation, which is out of the question.

This means, Ball said Thursday night, the U.S. government must pursue its present line of action: Strengthen Latin-American nations to resist Red subversion and reduce Havana's power to advance communism through means short of war.

Ball chose the Omicron Delta Kappa Society convention for what amounted to endorsement of present Cuban policy and a defense of the embargo the United States has mounted against the island.

Aims at Confusion

He said his objective was to clear up "misapprehensions" and "confusion" that have been apparent in public debate over the United States' Cuban policy.

Last month, Chairman J. W. Fulbright of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee charged in a Senate speech that the American boycott of Cuba has failed.

"It is simply not within our power to compel our allies to cut off their trade," the Arkansas Democrat said, "unless we are prepared to take drastic sanctions."

Ball contended, however, that "we have obtained considerable, although not complete, cooperation" from the NATO Allies in clamping down on shipping to Cuba and the sale of industrial goods, transport equipment and critical materials.

Cautions on Locomotives

Along this line, he cautioned against the sale of locomotives to Cuba, saying they would bolster the island's economy even more than did the recent sale of 450 British buses.

Cuba's Western transportation equipment is falling apart rapidly, he said, and it is important that the West not provide spare parts and replacements.

Ball did not specify what prospective deal he had in mind, although there have been reports that France is considering selling locomotives to the Castro government.

Ball flatly ruled out negotiation as well as invasion and maintained the United States "must rely, as our major instrument, on a systematic program of economic denial."

CollegeDemocrats Welcome Weinsoff

Herbert Weinsoff, Ellenville attorney and Ulster County Democratic candidate for the office of district attorney, was enthusiastically received at a meeting of the New Paltz College Young Democratic Club last night.

Emphasizing the importance of participation on the part of young people in the political community, Mr. Weinsoff also went on to correlate the theoretical and practical aspects of politics and the function of the party system in the United States today.

He also invited all those who are earnestly interested in working for the ideals of Democracy to join ranks with him to "depose existing bossism in Ulster County."

Weinsoff pledged himself not

State Denies Crippling Valley Brick Industry

The recently reported allegations by Joseph Y. Resnick that the New York State Division of Housing and Community Renewal has been responsible for crippling the brick industry in the Hudson Valley area are not supported by the facts.

This statement came today from Commissioner James William Gaynor, Division of Housing and Community Renewal, State of New York Executive Department.

It was in the form of a letter sent to newspapers which published charges made by the Ellenville industrialist and Democratic candidate for Congress from the 28th District, which includes Ulster County.

At a press conference in the Governor Clinton Hotel, April 17, Resnick said, "A native industry that is 200 years old seems doomed to extinction. The main reason for this shocking situation has been the policies of New York State which favor out-of-state brick over Hudson Valley brick in state-financed housing."

Gaynor's Answer

The rest of Commissioner Gaynor's letter refuting charges about the state crippling the brick industry in the Hudson Valley follows:

"First, this Division does not specify the origin of bricks which are to be used in projects which it finances. Under the State's limited-profit housing program the project's are privately owned, privately built and privately operated with the State providing mortgage money and exercising the superivsion necessary to protect its monetary investment. Selection of the contractor, architect and materials to be used is left to the option of the sponsor-owner.

"The Division has established certain criteria which have to be met, including minimum specifications for the types of materials to be used, minimum specifications for the methods of construction and minimum specifications for room and apartment sizes.

"Second, the Resnick charge, as reported, that the State appoints architects for projects it finances, is totally inaccurate. They are selected by the sponsor-owner and the State is not involved in any way with this selection. Incidentlly, professional ethics prohibit bidding by

Customers High In Praise for N. Y. Exposition

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York World's Fair, making a spectacular recovery from opening-day bad weather and civil rights clamor, has earned the endorsement of the most important of all critics, the customer.

The exposition was lauded by some two dozen persons polled at random Thursday on the fairgrounds.

163,252 Attend

Attendance climbed from Wednesday's opening-day 92,696 to 163,252 Thursday. The relatively low attendance Wednesday was attributed to civil rights demonstrations, which had been announced in advance, and to the chill rain.

More than 300 persons were arrested for demonstrating in or around the 646-acre fair site in Flushing Meadow Park.

Many of the patrons polled Thursday spoke of the educational value of the dozens of government and industrial pavilions.

"There are many worthwhile exhibitions," said Dante Germanotta of Walpole, Mass. "It speaks well of the technology of our society."

Others remarked about how far a dollar went, and still others praised the resting and eat-

Committee Is For Ban on Milk Pricing

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—A special committee named by Gov. Rockefeller to look into milk-marketing called today for a ban on unfair price discrimination in the sale of milk as a means of preventing price wars.

The committee also came out against any form of price-fixing in the sale of milk, either retail or wholesale.

Reports Today

The Governor's Committee on Milk Marketing, appointed by Rockefeller two years ago, submitted its report today.

The eight - member study group is headed by Prof. Glenn W. Hedlund, chairman of the Agricultural Economics Department at Cornell University.

Recommendations

Besides urging a ban on unfair price discrimination and rejecting price-fixing, the committee recommended that:

1-The agriculture commissioner be required, through fact-finding and educational programs, to "encourage fair and active competition" in milk distribution and discourage "unfair or destructive practices" that tend to lessen competition and increase the possibility of monopolistic abuses.

2-The agriculture commissioner be required to investigate complaints or instances of monopolistic abuse and report his findings to the attorney general.

3-The Agriculture Department follow a policy of licensing qualified milk dealers to encourage competition and adopttion of

Speak Up, Mom!

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My problem is an eight-year-old neighbor boy who plays with my seven-year-old. He comes to my house after school with my son. We eat supper at six o'clock and the neighbor kid just stands there watching us. When I ask him to eat with us, he never refuses. Sometimes I've asked him to wait in the other room, but he always ends up back in the kitchen watching us. My son is eager to play again, so he gives us a hard time and doesn't eat very well. I've sent the neighbor boy home because of this, but in 15 minutes he is back again. On school nights they let him stay at our house until I send him home so I can get my son ready for bed. Can you help me? I am a nervous wreck.

JACKIE'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: It's not the boy's fault. He has no rules to follow. Tell his mother that YOU have rules and you need her cooperation. Tell her precisely what hours your son has for playtime, mealtime and bedtime. Explain that he isn't permitted company at mealtime or afterwards. And if she doesn't respect your wishes, don't SEND the boy home — TAKE him home.

• • • •

DEAR ABBY: My husband insists that when a man and a lady go upstairs, the woman goes first, and when they go downstairs, the man goes first. I say it's the other way around. Who is right?

ETTA KET

DEAR ETTA: When a lady goes up the stairs, the gentleman should follow her so that he can catch her should she trip. And the gentleman precedes the lady when she descends, for the same reason.

• • • •

DEAR ABBY: A serviceman came to repair our washing machine and said he had to take it to his shop to fix. When he brought it back I was at work. A neighbor saw him trying to get into my house so she called me at work and told me what was going on. I called his employer at once and told him I didn't appreciate people going into my house while I was gone. He said that's the way everybody did nowadays. They always searched under mats, in mailboxes and all over for keys, and let themselves in. Am I out of step, Abby, or did he have a right to do this?

JUST PLAIN MAD

DEAR MAD: You are very much "in" step. And if you want to get technical, the serviceman is guilty of breaking and entering.

Goldwater Group Predicts Break By GOP Delegates

A break in the ranks of the Republican "old guard" seeking to designate delegates for Rockefeller in the June 2 primary election, was predicted today by Kent Leavitt, chairman of the Republicans for Goldwater Committee of the 28th Congressional District.

Mr. Leavitt based his comments on the result of the Associated Press poll of county chairmen throughout the country and the reported defections in the Rockefeller ranks in Bronx and Queen Counties. "With the upsurge of interest in Goldwater program throughout the 28th District," he said, "the liberal Rockefeller Republican leadership soon will have to turn to their diminishing public and suggest that their slate of candidates for delegates and alternates to San Francisco be uncommitted."

"After all, when you consider that the Rockefeller delegates choose the Governor as their personal candidate, and largely designated themselves (Kenneth Wilson and Myrtie Tinklepaugh as delegates, and Roy C. Ketchum and Neal Brandow as alternates), perhaps they might seek to be sent to the National Convention in July as unpledged and try again to pick their own idea of a winner."

Want Leavitt, Hall

The Republicans for Goldwater Committee, is seeking the election of Mr. Leavitt and Lewis Hall as delegates, with Alice O. Lafko and Archie C. Lebrecht as alternates.

"It could be expected that the opposition would become concerned when Senator Goldwater's strength became apparent and Governor Rockefeller's weakness became evident," Mr. Leavitt said.

"Had we, the Republicans for Goldwater, not forced their hand by demanding that a primary election be held on June 2, they could have gone to San Francisco as part of a 92 man delegation committed to Rockefeller. Now that we have obtained well over 1,000 signatures of enrolled Republicans designating our candidates, Leavitt, Hall, Lafko and Lebrecht, who are conservatively minded and all for Goldwater, the Republican leadership knows they have a primary fight on their hands. Their idol seems to be developing feet of clay; so to avoid public defeat at the polls on June 2, they will appeal to their supporters to send them uncommitted to San Francisco."

Reason for Backing

"For the first time in many years," Mr. Leavitt continued, "the voters of this 28th Congressional District have a chance of getting behind a candidate who is neither 'me too' nor 'a stuid reactionary', as the liberal press would have you believe. We are not for Barry Goldwater because 'we believe everything he believes' as Senator Norris Cotton said 'but because he has fought courageously and unceasingly for a philosophy of government and a way of life to which this nation was dedicated and to which it must return.'

"Therefore, I appeal to the enrolled Republican voters of the 28th Congressional District, to watch with care the statements of the leadership in Dutchess, Columbia, Greene, Schoharie and Ulster Counties as they shift from pro Rockefeller to pro someone else and then you decide if they are entitled to your vote on June 2."

NEW YORK (AP) — Conventions are big business and the scramble to get them is becoming fiercer.

Some cities long since became convention-minded and have profited. Others are belatedly trying to get into the swim.

800 in Gotham

New York City last year played host to 800 conventions which spent an estimated $250 million.

Competition to attract conventions is keen among cities which recognize the potential financial rewards from housing and entertaining convention delegates.

Many cities have organized special visitors and convention bureaus to meet the competition and assist in promoting this lucrative trade.

Winning out as the convention site, however, is only the first step.

A city must offer first-rate accommodations, facilities to handle big crowds such as adequate transportation, banquet halls, restaurants and an easily accessible location.

For example, New York City in the last four years has added 12,000 new rooms to its already numerous housing accommodations.

Others Also Active

Other cities such as Atlantic City, Chicago, Philadelphia and Los Angeles have not stood still. Construction of large capacity convention halls, additional housing and eating facilities have helped promote them as convention locations.

Convention delegates spread their money widely. The New York Convention and Visitors Bureau calculates that the average convention delegate spends his money this way:

Hotel rooms, 30 per cent; restaurants, 24 per cent; beverages, 5 per cent; retail stores, 18 per cent; local transportation, 4 per cent; night clubs, 5 per cent; gasoline, oil and automobile service, 1 per cent; theaters, movies and sightseeing, 13 per cent.

While only a relatively few cities are able to take care of huge conventions which draw thousands of delegates, many smaller cities are adding to their business firms' revenues by actively going after regional gatherings.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

From time to time I have quoted from some excellent material loaned me by Clayton R. Smith who compiled it around 1925. One item reads: "Jacob Rutsen was one of the original trustees to whom the charter of Kingston was granted in 1687. He also served several times in the Provincial Assembly. Col. Rutsen was a maternal ancestor of Dewitt Clinton. In 1700 Rutsen owned nearly all of the Rondout Valley."

Mr. Smith further wrote: "High Falls derives its name from the falls in the Rondout Creek at this point. It was granted to Thomas Quick and Francis Coin in 1682 for development as a grist mill. Next is Alligerville named from one of its important residents and was formerly Schoonmaker's Bridge. Right close by is, Kyserike, the derivation of this name is somewhat beclouded. There is no doubt that it is derived from the Keyser family, the ancestor of which was the leaseholder of Rutsen's property in Rosendale. One authority claimed that it meant the rich Keyser; there is also a legend about one of the Keyser girls marrying a man by the name of Isaac and because of this she was called Keyser-Ike, hence Kyserike."

Mr. Smith's manuscript continues about Accord, which originally was on the west side of the Rondout Creek. The community was not known as Accord at this time. Finally it was decided to move the town to the other side of the Creek and give it a name so that they could have a Post Office. They could not agree on a name, and such fights arose that they almost came to blows. Someone sent in the name, "Discord" to the Post Office Department and they decided on the name "Accord."

It is interesting to learn the origination of many of these names of places around here. Mr. Smith continues on Kerhonkson, the next village on the Rondout. "The name is of Indian origin being written Kahaksan. Some historians claim that the Indian fort, which figured so prominently in the Esopus War in 1663, was located at Kerhonkson, the evidence of its being back of Wawarsing seems stronger. It was, to the home of Johannes Hardenbergh, in Kerhonkson that the state records were removed during the Revolutionary War just before the burning of Kingston by the British. This house was still standing in 1925, in the bend of Rondout about a mile south of the village on the west side of the stream and was erected in 1762. The section around Accord and Kerhonkson, the present town of Rochester, was a part of the Rochester Patent issued in 1703 in the name of Queen Anne to the Earl of Rochester."

The following may be interesting on the "Old Mine Road." Mr. Smith writes: "Along the western edge of the Shawangunk from Accord on toward the west there was an old road which was known as the Old Mine Road and it is supposed to have gone to the 'Spanish Mine.' There is nothing definitely known about its origin and it has always been somewhat of a mystery. Another unsolved mystery is the '550 Tunnel' about a half mile south west of Napanoch. This is a tunnel which goes into the mountain 550 feet. One theory advanced is, that, under a concession granted by William Penn in 1681 to open mines in the territory over which he had control, some of the prospectors advanced beyond the bounds of the concession and opened mines in this region without any authority."

The circus will be coming from Oneonta and is scheduled to arrive before dawn, traveling in two vast convoys.

Johnson Attends Lunch Meetings

John W. Johnson, School Lunch director of the Kingston City Schools, Consolidated, is attending the statewide invitational conference of School Lunch directors of Large school districts being held at the Inn Towne Motel, Albany, today and Saturday.

More than 150 representatives of public, private and parochial schools and staff members of the State Education Department are in attendance.

Guest speakers include representatives of elementary and secondary education divisions of the Department; Howard Goff, superintendent of East Greenbush Central School; Dr. Frank E. Funk, administrator, Leadership Center, University College, Syracuse; and Jack Ghene, editor, Volume Feeding Management Magazine. Discussions emphasize teamwork within the school and community to strengthen the contribution of the school lunch program to the well-being of children and youth.

Nearly 1,250,000 school meals are served daily to students in 4,000 New York state schools. In the Kingston City Schools, Consolidated, an average of 2,500 lunches are served daily. Prime purpose of the school lunch program is to make available low cost meals which safeguard health, contribute to development of desirable food habits and provide a laboratory for application of classroom learnings.

During the course of a school year lunch program expenditures in New York State for labor, food and other supplies exceed $105 million. Over $290,000 will be expended this year in the Kingston school system. This is supplied by children's payments for meals supplemented by some local, state and federal funds.

Schools in the state employ more than 25,000 local citizens to accomplish this tremendous task. In the Kingston School Lunch Program there are 73 persons employed.

NEW BEHAVIOR RULE

One of the cliches of our time is that "nuclear bombs have made war unthinkable" — unthinkable in the sense that we can no longer fall back on armed force to settle international arguments. Too much—if not all — of human life and human civilization would be wiped out.

Actually, the immense destructive power of the atom has forced men to think about war as they never have before in history, and in this fact lies our hope for the future.

In the stable world of 1914, after a century without a major international conflict, war was also "unthinkable." But the tragic fact was that because the leaders of that day did not think about war and its consequences, war came. Its results are part and parcel of the crises we face today.

The first child of 1914 was World War II. Its grandchild is the Cold War, whose specter of atomic Armageddon has been chilling our bones for these nearly 20 years.

Suddenly — but not accidentally—it may be that something resembling real peace is breaking out.

President Johnson recently called for "reasoned agreement instead of ready aggression" in dealing with world problems.

There is nothing new about this lofty idea, of course. It is as old as war itself.

What is new is that it is no longer a platitude but is becoming a rule of international behavior. Despite Cyprus, Viet Nam, Berlin and a dozen other old and new points of friction between East and West, the world has moved steadily back from the nuclear precipice it stood on during the Cuban missile crisis in 1962.

This does not mean that the possiblity of war has ceased to exist and we need no longer worry about it, or that the Communists have abandoned their goal of making the world unsafe for democracy.

There is still plenty of unrest in the world, and the Communists are trying and will continue to try, to profit from it. But more and more frequently they are being brought up short by the "Stop" sign of nuclear war.

More and more, internal dissension is racking the Communist world itself — the Chinese - Russian feud, Russia's economic troubles, the growing independence of the Eastern European satellites.

More and more, communism is being forced to compete with democracy against a background of general peace. And it is in peace that democracy thrives.

As President Johnson said on the 15th anniversary of NATO: "Our guard is up. But," he added, "our hand is out."

THERE FOR THE FINDING

It is a truism that this planet's reserves of the natural resources that undergird civilization — coal, oil, metal ores — are dwindling. The depletion of such resources is inevitable, and once gone they can never be replaced.

It is true, however, that two factors are working in favor of man's needs for raw materials. One is that, though one might suppose every square mile of the earth's surface had long since been scanned, new sources occasionally are discovered. The other is that we are steadily learning how to utilize deposits that were once considered too poor to be worked.

Taconite iron ore in northern Minnesota provides a good example of the latter. The former is illustrated once again by announcement that some 25 million tons of zinc, copper and silver ore have just been discovered in Ontario. Between these two things, discovery and better utilization, man seems to have a good ways to go yet before he runs out of raw materials or hits on new ones yet not dreamed of.

IT'S NOT SO EASY

At the time of the great train robbery in England last summer, the British authorities moved with great speed. This led to some unfavorable comparisons with the seeming lethargy of American police involved in similar cases.

There was some basis for such comparisons. It has become evident, however, that even the justly famous British net for bringing criminals to book does not always capture all the birds right away.

Twelve men have now been convicted of helping to rob a train of more than seven million dollars' worth of old money. But the three suspected ringleaders are still at large; more than $5.6 millions worth of the loot is not yet recovered. This does not excuse slow police work over here. It does remind us that capturing ingenious criminals is a lot harder in real life than in the whodunits.

IN PRAISE OF TAX LOOPHOLES

There is everything in the world to be said in favor of tax reform. If only to save people those endless hours of torture tracking down mislaid sales receipts, looking up illegible scrawls in notebooks, figuring how much to charge off for that maple tree demolished by lightning, computing the percentage of car write-off used for business, and trying to remember forty details which you thought at the time you'd never forget, a change in the tax laws is at least twenty years overdue.

Having said this, however, this columnist must protest the unctuous moralism that crops up in the weeks after April 15 when tax "loopholes" are the main topics of conversation over the coffee. The fact is that "loopholes," in default of a sensible tax structure, are the very things that have enabled our economic system to do as well as it has done through the years of the Cold War. The loopholes have been the health of the system.

One argument put forth by our economic Puritans is that retention by corporations of some of their profits for reinvestment purposes is a pure tax dodge designed to enable rich stockholders to turn income into capital gains. True enough, the so-called "double taxation" of dividend money encourages stockholders to leave part of their porfits in company treasuries. But the argument that this is a nefarious practice overlooks the fact that corporations need investment money from time to time if they are to keep the economy efficiently alive.

If, after paying the federal government fifty-two per cent of its profits, a corporation were to pass the greater part of the remaining profits along to the stockholders as dividends, the government would end up by taking a grand total of some seventy to eighty percent of corporation profits for itself. The economy would be starved for new investment money. Efficiency would decline, foreign competition would be more lethal, payrolls would diminish—and the government would have to try to cure the mess by going into manufacturing businesses for itself. Possibly this is what our economic Puritans are after, but as for me, I prefer the loophole that lets a company keep some investment funds from being cut in half all over again by double taxation. Corporation retention of profits is the loophole that has saved us from socialism.

Another loophole resented by our economic Puritans is the one that permits corporation executives to build up their personal capital by exercising stock options. Michigan's Governor George Romney, for example, has been criticized for getting shares in American Motors for much less money than he subsequently sold them for. The economic Puritans quite overlook the consideration that Mr. Romney deserved some special recompense for rescuing the American Motors Company from looming disaster. They also overlook the fact that stock options enabled Mr. Romney to turn from business activities to public service without subjecting his family to deprivation because of his idealism. Moreover, if Romney hadn't had the incentive to keep one of the lesser automobile manufacturers from succumbing to bankruptcy, we might have a higher degree of concentration in the motor industry than we have now. The economic Puritans might remember this when they next take off on the wickedness of the stock option loophole. These critics of Mr. Romney's stock option profits are the same economic Puritans who are forever inveighing against the immorality of permitting the emergence of Big Twos and Big Threes in U. S. basic industries.

Don't get me wrong in this matter of offering a defense of loopholes. I would vastly prefer a simple tax system, with the U. S. Treasury taking a fixed percentage (preferably at a flat rate on all incomes over $5,000) on one's gross earnings. The rate should be low enough to permit people to make charitable donations, to pay local real estate and sales taxes, and to invest some of their savings in new industry, without being allowed the complicated exemptions that go by the name of loopholes. But just so long as we have steeply progressive tax rates and double taxation of dividends, we are going to need the loopholes to keep our economy from dying on the vine.

Patch Tests Reveal Clues In Tracking Down Irritant

Q—Every time I wore a dark blue suit I bought last year, my legs broke out with a severely itching rash. I wrote to the manufacturer and he said that the material (wool and dacron) was handled daily by many employes and worn by thousands of customers without causing any reaction. Do you think my trouble was due to the material or the dye? Is there any way I can be immunized against the cause?

A—You should have your doctor make a patch test with small samples of wool of different colors and samples of dacron as well. This should narrow the cause down to one of the materials or to a dye. If the dye is at fault, ask the manufacturer to give you a complete list of its components. Then, if possible, you should have patch tests made with pieces of white cleansing tissue to which each ingredient has been added. When you have discovered the specific cause it may be possible for your doctor to desensitize you—a tedious process at best—or you may be able to avoid further contact with the irritant.

Q—My nose is sore on the inside summer and winter, in damp weather and dry. It cracks and never stays healed longer than two or three days at a time. What can I do to heal it?

A—The nose bruises and bleeds easily. Its mucosal lining is very thin and covers a dense network of blood vessels. Removing hard crusts can easily cause cracking and slight bleeding. If hard crusts are a part of your trouble, you should keep the lining membranes softened with a thin coating of petroleum jelly. If this does not help, have your doctor see whether you have a small ulcer that needs to be cauterized.

Q—I have a congenital heart defect called patent ductus arteriosus. I am 20 and I am able to swim, play tennis and dance without causing heart symptoms. What are my chances of living a normal life span?

A—This type of congenital heart leakage is due to a failure of the communication between the pulmonary artery and the aorta to close. The size of the leak varies greatly in different individuals and the smallest opening may cause the loudest murmur and the least interference with normal circulation. The fact that you can lead an active life without cardiac symptoms is evidence that yours is a very slight defect. It should not affect your life span.

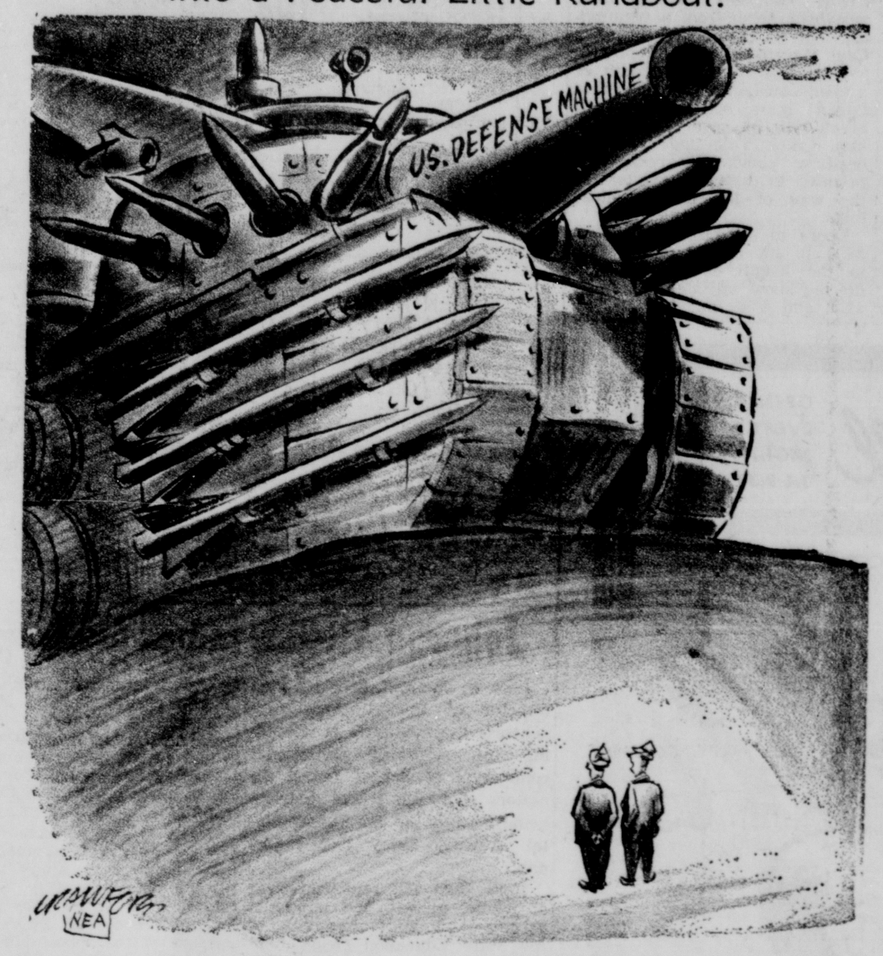
"You Suppose It Can Be Converted Into a Peaceful Little Runabout?"



Washington News

BY BRUCE BIOSSAT
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — These days you can't gain much standing in Washington — and maybe a lot of other places—if you accept the surface evidence of events.

The big market now is in plots, hidden motives, behind-the-hand explanations.

Simple answers will never do. Complexity, if not deviousness, is demanded. Innocence is rejected.

Applying the current standards to some recent events, one needs to dig diligently for the underlying plots and purposes. Herewith some tentative findings:

We have all heard that Lady Bird Johnson, First Lady of the Land, likes to wear yellow. Dare we assume this is simply because she favors it?

After all, remember, yellow is the color that can be seen farthest. That's why it turns up in streamlined trains and life rafts.

Her husband, the President, an old Navy man who may be alert to this fact, could have ordered her to wear yellow. In a campaign year, there is much to be said for giving the candidate's wife maximum visibility.

"There she is!" is a cry which, if heard often enough, can gladden a campaigner's heart.

So much for that. No doubt you read that the annual children's Easter egg roll on the White House lawn was called off this year on account of bad weather. Think that's the whole story?

Actually, "informed sources" say the cancellation was the tip-off that the egg roll is on the way out. It seems the Communist toddlers' movement has infiltrated the ranks of our young egg rollers. Precocious young Reds have been caught sketching the White House grounds from clumps of protective holly bushes. Their early show of talent was not appreciated.

THEN AGAIN, TWICE IN ONE RECENT DAY some senators were summoned to return to the Senate from their rounds of pleasure at the baseball game and the theater. The official explanation, of course: they had to get back to help make up a quorum in the continuing civil rights struggle on the Senate floor.

Now who does that really fool? There has to be a more complicated explanation than that. One properly conspiratorial notion is that we were trying out new, quick-assembly procedures for pulling the lawmakers together in case of a surprise attack.

Everybody recalls, too, that Theodore Sorensen, a top aide of the late President Kennedy, left the White House in late February, ostensibly to write a book about Kennedy.

Well, maybe. But there's more to it than that. He is installed at a place called the Littauer Center at Harvard University. It does not take much imagination to figure that he is being groomed for the presidency—of Harvard. He COULD have written the book in the Virgin Islands, from whose university he had an offer. You don't give up the Caribbean without a reason.

IF ALL THIS IS PRETTY SILLY STUFF, so perhaps is a great deal of the conspiratorial theorizing offered here and elsewhere in "explanation" of virtually everything that happens.

Next time a public figure resigns a post, gets one, moves his base, enters a political race, or pulls out, watch how it works. The louder he proclaims his purposes, the more he insists he is not "playing a game," the more people who will crowd around him to nod sagely and say: "George, you played it smart. Very smart."

Rail Dispute Settlement Held 'Coercive Mediation'

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — The exultant presentation by President Johnson over television and radio on Wednesday night, announcing that the railroad strike had been settled by "the free collective-bargaining process," didn't tell the whole story. In fact, in one respect these words were misleading. It would have been more accurate to have conceded frankly to the American people that they had just witnessed a dramatic example of coercive "mediation."

For both sides — the railroad and the union representatives—negotiated with a club over their heads. This pressure was not revealed to the public, but the "bargainers" knew that unless they agreed by the end of this week, the President would ask Congress to pass a law barring a rail strike while a governmental process of settlement was put into effect.

Each side had to estimate whether more would be gained or less accomplished by letting Congress enact a new law that would apply not just for the emergency but continuously hereafter. Such a statute would give the government power to prescribe the settlement of issues under an elaborate machinery of mediation and then arbitration.

While the threat to get Congress to enact new legislation was never defined in the conferences at which government mediators were present, the idea was in the back of everybody's mind constantly and was made evident to the conferees in various ways. It was, indeed, the obvious alternative. The problem of the railroads and of the labor representatives, respectively, during the negotations, therefore, was how to get the utmost advantage for each side without blocking the road to final agreement.

In a sense the unions were deprived of their normal use of economic power—the opportunity to threaten the railroads with financial loss. This is always the biggest weapon a labor union can wield. The employers could bring about some financial hardships for the workers through wage losses, but this is largely protected against by strike and insurance funds and unemployment benefits paid for by the railroads.

While the railroads recognized that the dispute had to be settled and a strike averted, this didn't relieve them of another financial strain—the amount of wage benefits and changes they would have to agree to for the future in order to satisfy the demands of the unions. They knew that a political government naturally leans toward the labor side.

The pressure on the railroads, moreover, to reach some kind of agreement was intensive for another reason. They couldn't know how much more their costs might be if a government-established board had power to fix the working rules.

So, all in all, the railroad representatives realized that they could not bargain in the customary way and hold out for better terms as the union representatives had done in more than five years of jockeying in negotiations. A settlement, therefore, had to come. But who was to say in a few days of critical parleys which proposals had to be accepted? Here the pressure by government, exerted by the Secretary of Labor and government-appointed mediators, came into play. It was simply a case of "take it or leave it," with a hidden warning. For, when the mediators spoke, everyone knew they had behind them a club possessed by and about to be used by the President himself.

This, of course, isn't a "free collective-bargaining process." It introduces a third party, euphemistically identified as the "public interest." It means nevertheless an arbitrary usurpation of governmental power without the explicit sanction of Congress.

Indeed, the "public interest" will not be fully served until the Congress, by law, defines and limits the right to strike on the railroads. As things stand today, the exercise of such a right could at any time inflict a devastating loss on the national economy, with untold hardships to innocent bystanders. For, as has happened before, there can be a strike threat at any time on one unresolved issue. As United Press International pointed out in its report on the terms of Wednesday's settlement, there are Railway Labor Act procedures which permit the unions to avail themselves of certain forms of protracted application of the rules which "could take years to process proposals by either side to the point where another shutdown of the railroads on these issues could be threatened."

So, while the public reaction may be one of relief that for the time being there is to be no catastrophe, the menace can hardly be said to have disappeared. If public opinion isn't informed as to the dangers—the true nature of the settlement just reached and its implications—nothing will be done by the President or Congress until the next crisis.

The public is confronted with the realistic fact that free collective bargaining has been supplanted by coercive "mediation," and this can hardly be depended upon in the long run as a way to solve major disputes. What has happened gives an uncomfortable feeling of acquiescence in a kind of benevolent dictatorship. An explicit law setting forth the limits to which both sides can go in rail-labor disputes in the future is more than ever needed.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

We are in the year of the image. Translated, the word means "public impression." Everybody today has an image. How is yours? Are you regarded as a serious, intelligent, humorous, witty, good-looking, well-dressed, happy-go-lucky, charitable and lovable human being? If not, you have a bent image.

Corporations spend millions of dollars on their image. The fact that they may have something to sell is secondary. They must be known to all as warm and friendly, "like one great big family." Once a corporation or an individual, or a community, acquires a decent image, unremitting labor is required to maintain it.

The news magazines are quarreling with the image of Lyndon B. Johnson at the moment. His informality, they find, is incompatible with his high office. He invites men in for state talks when he is shaving in his pajamas. He loves his wife and thinks his two daughters are the finest in the world. He drives a carful of sob-sisters at top speed over Texas roads. He broils beef at cookouts and invites strangers outside the White House fence to take a walk with him around the grounds.

As one who has maintained a bent image for years, I like his. The reporters forget that (a) he has had an image for many years; (b) if he alters it to suit their whims, President Johnson will be less a man than they think it is. He may not have the hauteur of a Woodrow Wilson, or the humility of Lincoln, or the vision of a Thomas Jefferson, but he sure works hard and plays hard.

His oratory is labored and studied; he is a doer who will compromise to get things done; the features are leathery and lined; the brown eyes are deadly serious behind the polished lenses. Sometimes he reminds me of a Good Humor man who got promoted to the front office and forgot to throw the little bells away. But, as long as he is our Chief Executive, I see nothing spurious and nothing weak about the image.

Harry Truman was a born debunker. Sometimes, when he was getting a long-winded "snow" job, his eyes glinted as though he couldn't wait to spit in the speaker's eye. That too is an image. Dwight D. Eisenhower was so busy maintaining the dignity of the office, that he seemed to have lost the people. Calvin Coolidge hid his fear of events and people behind a granite expression.

Herbert Hoover, who was born with a twinkling sense of humor and an enormous addiction to duty, hid his image behind a cold facade until after he retired from office. Franklin D. Roosevelt, the consummate politician, stuck a long cigarette holder between his big teeth, turned on a grin, and charmed the voters into four successive elections.

John F. Kennedy was so boyish, so buoyant, that he had to comb his hair flatter and assume an overly serious image to convince the electorate that he was old enough for the job. Richard Nixon played the innocent, maligned sufferer. Thomas Dewey hurled his deep baritone of confidence at the people and they hurled him back into private life.

Images. They all had images, except that we used to call it personality. Some of the best personalities made poor public officials. Louis Johnson could laugh and back-slap with the best of them, but when he was Secretary of Defense, the United States decided that it did not need missiles. Everybody in the Senate liked the little rabbit, Bobby Baker, but he won't answer the questions of his old buddies.

There is a mass yearning to be liked, to be admired. That is why some are willing to buy an image. It doesn't matter how phony it is, so long as it is endearing. Once I had an editor decline a column I wrote about a drunk. I asked him why. "What?" he said. "A story about a drunk by the author of The Day Christ Died? Oh no. It doesn't fit the image."

It will come as a shock to him to learn that one of the reasons I wrote that book was to even the score for some pretty wild sins. In fact, as a writer, I'm somewhat of a loner; a recluse. Perhaps grouch is a better word. So, if I had an image, it is now shot, and good riddance to it. I would a thousand times prefer to be known as plain lousy me than as Jim, the pious hypocrite.

Ironically, some men of fine personality and great talent are born losers. Henry Cabot Lodge is one. In Massachusetts, the Kennedys took turns trouncing this handsome statesman. They knocked his block off. He also lost as Nixon's running mate. Now he gets jobs from the Democrats.

My advice is to forget your image. Keep the one you have. It is better to be stuck with an old one than to stick your friends with a new one. Don't become sickeningly sweet . . .

NEW BEHAVIOR RULE

One of the cliches of our time is that "nuclear bombs have made war unthinkable" — unthinkable in the sense that we can no longer fall back on armed force to settle international arguments. Too much—if not all — of human life and human civilization would be wiped out.

Actually, the immense destructive power of the atom has forced men to think about war as they never have before in history, and in this fact lies our hope for the future.

In the stable world of 1914, after a century without a major international conflict, war was also "unthinkable." But the tragic fact was that because the leaders of that day did not think about war and its consequences, war came. Its results are part and parcel of the crises we face today.

The first child of 1914 was World War II. Its grandchild is the Cold War, whose specter of atomic Armageddon has been chilling our bones for these nearly 20 years.

Suddenly — but not accidentally—it may be that something resembling real peace is breaking out.

President Johnson recently called for "reasoned agreement instead of ready aggression" in dealing with world problems.

There is nothing new about this lofty idea, of course. It is as old as war itself.

What is new is that it is no longer a platitude but is becoming a rule of international behavior. Despite Cyprus, Viet Nam, Berlin and a dozen other old and new points of friction between East and West, the world has moved steadily back from the nuclear precipice it stood on during the Cuban missile crisis in 1962.

This does not mean that the possiblity of war has ceased to exist and we need no longer worry about it, or that the Communists have abandoned their goal of making the world unsafe for democracy.

There is still plenty of unrest in the world, and the Communists are trying and will continue to try, to profit from it. But more and more frequently they are being brought up short by the "Stop" sign of nuclear war.

More and more, internal dissension is racking the Communist world itself — the Chinese - Russian feud, Russia's economic troubles, the growing independence of the Eastern European satellites.

More and more, communism is being forced to compete with democracy against a background of general peace. And it is in peace that democracy thrives.

As President Johnson said on the 15th anniversary of NATO: "Our guard is up. But," he added, "our hand is out."

THERE FOR THE FINDING

It is a truism that this planet's reserves of the natural resources that undergird civilization — coal, oil, metal ores — are dwindling. The depletion of such resources is inevitable, and once gone they can never be replaced.

It is true, however, that two factors are working in favor of man's needs for raw materials. One is that, though one might suppose every square mile of the earth's surface had long since been scanned, new sources occasionally are discovered. The other is that we are steadily learning how to utilize deposits that were once considered too poor to be worked.

Taconite iron ore in northern Minnesota provides a good example of the latter. The former is illustrated once again by announcement that some 25 million tons of zinc, copper and silver ore have just been discovered in Ontario. Between these two things, discovery and better utilization, man seems to have a good ways to go yet before he runs out of raw materials or hits on new ones yet not dreamed of.

IT'S NOT SO EASY

At the time of the great train robbery in England last summer, the British authorities moved with great speed. This led to some unfavorable comparisons with the seeming lethargy of American police involved in similar cases.

There was some basis for such comparisons. It has become evident, however, that even the justly famous British net for bringing criminals to book does not always capture all the birds right away.

Twelve men have now been convicted of helping to rob a train of more than seven million dollars' worth of old money. But the three suspected ringleaders are still at large; more than $5.6 millions worth of the loot is not yet recovered. This does not excuse slow police work over here. It does remind us that capturing ingenious criminals is a lot harder in real life than in the whodunits.

IN PRAISE OF TAX LOOPHOLES

There is everything in the world to be said in favor of tax reform. If only to save people those endless hours of torture tracking down mislaid sales receipts, looking up illegible scrawls in notebooks, figuring how much to charge off for that maple tree demolished by lightning, computing the percentage of car write-off used for business, and trying to remember forty details which you thought at the time you'd never forget, a change in the tax laws is at least twenty years overdue.

Having said this, however, this columnist must protest the unctuous moralism that crops up in the weeks after April 15 when tax "loopholes" are the main topics of conversation over the coffee. The fact is that "loopholes," in default of a sensible tax structure, are the very things that have enabled our economic system to do as well as it has done through the years of the Cold War. The loopholes have been the health of the system.

One argument put forth by our economic Puritans is that retention by corporations of some of their profits for reinvestment purposes is a pure tax dodge designed to enable rich stockholders to turn income into capital gains. True enough, the so-called "double taxation" of dividend money encourages stockholders to leave part of their porfits in company treasuries. But the argument that this is a nefarious practice overlooks the fact that corporations need investment money from time to time if they are to keep the economy efficiently alive.

If, after paying the federal government fifty-two per cent of its profits, a corporation were to pass the greater part of the remaining profits along to the stockholders as dividends, the government would end up by taking a grand total of some seventy to eighty percent of corporation profits for itself. The economy would be starved for new investment money. Efficiency would decline, foreign competition would be more lethal, payrolls would diminish—and the government would have to try to cure the mess by going into manufacturing businesses for itself. Possibly this is what our economic Puritans are after, but as for me, I prefer the loophole that lets a company keep some investment funds from being cut in half all over again by double taxation. Corporation retention of profits is the loophole that has saved us from socialism.

Another loophole resented by our economic Puritans is the one that permits corporation executives to build up their personal capital by exercising stock options. Michigan's Governor George Romney, for example, has been criticized for getting shares in American Motors for much less money than he subsequently sold them for. The economic Puritans quite overlook the consideration that Mr. Romney deserved some special recompense for rescuing the American Motors Company from looming disaster. They also overlook the fact that stock options enabled Mr. Romney to turn from business activities to public service without subjecting his family to deprivation because of his idealism. Moreover, if Romney hadn't had the incentive to keep one of the lesser automobile manufacturers from succumbing to bankruptcy, we might have a higher degree of concentration in the motor industry than we have now. The economic Puritans might remember this when they next take off on the wickedness of the stock option loophole. These critics of Mr. Romney's stock option profits are the same economic Puritans who are forever inveighing against the immorality of permitting the emergence of Big Twos and Big Threes in U. S. basic industries.

Don't get me wrong in this matter of offering a defense of loopholes. I would vastly prefer a simple tax system, with the U. S. Treasury taking a fixed percentage (preferably at a flat rate on all incomes over $5,000) on one's gross earnings. The rate should be low enough to permit people to make charitable donations, to pay local real estate and sales taxes, and to invest some of their savings in new industry, without being allowed the complicated exemptions that go by the name of loopholes. But just so long as we have steeply progressive tax rates and double taxation of dividends, we are going to need the loopholes to keep our economy from dying on the vine.

Patch Tests Reveal Clues In Tracking Down Irritant

Q—Every time I wore a dark blue suit I bought last year, my legs broke out with a severely itching rash. I wrote to the manufacturer and he said that the material (wool and dacron) was handled daily by many employes and worn by thousands of customers without causing any reaction. Do you think my trouble was due to the material or the dye? Is there any way I can be immunized against the cause?

A—You should have your doctor make a patch test with small samples of wool of different colors and samples of dacron as well. This should narrow the cause down to one of the materials or to a dye. If the dye is at fault, ask the manufacturer to give you a complete list of its components. Then, if possible, you should have patch tests made with pieces of white cleansing tissue to which each ingredient has been added. When you have discovered the specific cause it may be possible for your doctor to desensitize you—a tedious process at best—or you may be able to avoid further contact with the irritant.

Q—My nose is sore on the inside summer and winter, in damp weather and dry. It cracks and never stays healed longer than two or three days at a time. What can I do to heal it?

A—The nose bruises and bleeds easily. Its mucosal lining is very thin and covers a dense network of blood vessels. Removing hard crusts can easily cause cracking and slight bleeding. If hard crusts are a part of your trouble, you should keep the lining membranes softened with a thin coating of petroleum jelly. If this does not help, have your doctor see whether you have a small ulcer that needs to be cauterized.

Q—I have a congenital heart defect called patent ductus arteriosus. I am 20 and I am able to swim, play tennis and dance without causing heart symptoms. What are my chances of living a normal life span?

A—This type of congenital heart leakage is due to a failure of the communication between the pulmonary artery and the aorta to close. The size of the leak varies greatly in different individuals and the smallest opening may cause the loudest murmur and the least interference with normal circulation. The fact that you can lead an active life without cardiac symptoms is evidence that yours is a very slight defect. It should not affect your life span.

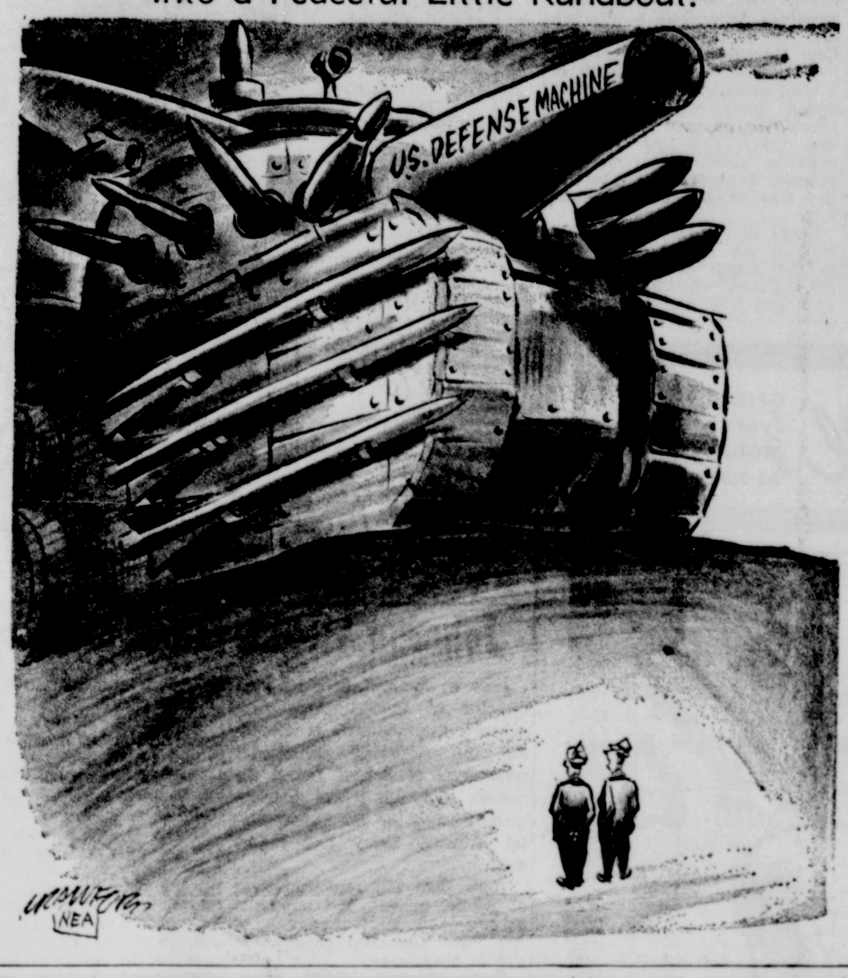
"You Suppose It Can Be Converted Into a Peaceful Little Runabout?"



Washington News

BY BRUCE BIOSSAT
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — These days you can't gain much standing in Washington — and maybe a lot of other places—if you accept the surface evidence of events.

The big market now is in plots, hidden motives, behind-the-hand explanations.

Simple answers will never do. Complexity, if not deviousness, is demanded. Innocence is rejected.

Applying the current standards to some recent events, one needs to dig diligently for the underlying plots and purposes. Herewith some tentative findings:

We have all heard that Lady Bird Johnson, First Lady of the Land, likes to wear yellow. Dare we assume this is simply because she favors it?

After all, remember, yellow is the color that can be seen farthest. That's why it turns up in streamlined trains and life rafts.

Her husband, the President, an old Navy man who may be alert to this fact, could have ordered her to wear yellow. In a campaign year, there is much to be said for giving the candidate's wife maximum visibility.

"There she is!" is a cry which, if heard often enough, can gladden a campaigner's heart.

So much for that. No doubt you read that the annual children's Easter egg roll on the White House lawn was called off this year on account of bad weather. Think that's the whole story?

Actually, "informed sources" say the cancellation was the tip-off that the egg roll is on the way out. It seems the Communist toddlers' movement has infiltrated the ranks of our young egg rollers. Precocious young Reds have been caught sketching the White House grounds from clumps of protective holly bushes. Their early show of talent was not appreciated.

THEN AGAIN, TWICE IN ONE RECENT DAY some senators were summoned to return to the Senate from their rounds of pleasure at the baseball game and the theater. The official explanation, of course: they had to get back to help make up a quorum in the continuing civil rights struggle on the Senate floor.

Now who does that really fool? There has to be a more complicated explanation than that. One properly conspiratorial notion is that we were trying out new, quick-assembly procedures for pulling the lawmakers together in case of a surprise attack.

Everybody recalls, too, that Theodore Sorensen, a top aide of the late President Kennedy, left the White House in late February, ostensibly to write a book about Kennedy.

Well, maybe. But there's more to it than that. He is installed at a place called the Littauer Center at Harvard University. It does not take much imagination to figure that he is being groomed for the presidency—of Harvard. He COULD have written the book in the Virgin Islands, from whose university he had an offer. You don't give up the Caribbean without a reason.

IF ALL THIS IS PRETTY SILLY STUFF, so perhaps is a great deal of the conspiratorial theorizing offered here and elsewhere in "explanation" of virtually everything that happens.

Next time a public figure resigns a post, gets one, moves his base, enters a political race, or pulls out, watch how it works. The louder he proclaims his purposes, the more he insists he is not "playing a game," the more people who will crowd around him to nod sagely and say: "George, you played it smart. Very smart."

Rail Dispute Settlement Held 'Coercive Mediation'

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — The exultant presentation by President Johnson over television and radio on Wednesday night, announcing that the railroad strike had been settled by "the free collective-bargaining process," didn't tell the whole story. In fact, in one respect these words were misleading. It would have been more accurate to have conceded frankly to the American people that they had just witnessed a dramatic example of coercive "mediation."

For both sides — the railroad and the union representatives—negotiated with a club over their heads. This pressure was not revealed to the public, but the "bargainers" knew that unless they agreed by the end of this week, the President would ask Congress to pass a law barring a rail strike while a governmental process of settlement was put into effect.

Each side had to estimate whether more would be gained or less accomplished by letting Congress enact a new law that would apply not just for the emergency but continuously hereafter. Such a statute would give the government power to prescribe the settlement of issues under an elaborate machinery of mediation and then arbitration.

While the threat to get Congress to enact new legislation was never defined in the conferences at which government mediators were present, the idea was in the back of everybody's mind constantly and was made evident to the conferees in various ways. It was, indeed, the obvious alternative. The problem of the railroads and of the labor representatives, respectively, during the negotations, therefore, was how to get the utmost advantage for each side without blocking the road to final agreement.

In a sense the unions were deprived of their normal use of economic power—the opportunity to threaten the railroads with financial loss. This is always the biggest weapon a labor union can wield. The employers could bring about some financial hardships for the workers through wage losses, but this is largely protected against by strike and insurance funds and unemployment benefits paid for by the railroads.

While the railroads recognized that the dispute had to be settled and a strike averted, this didn't relieve them of another financial strain—the amount of wage benefits and changes they would have to agree to for the future in order to satisfy the demands of the unions. They knew that a political government naturally leans toward the labor side.

The pressure on the railroads, moreover, to reach some kind of agreement was intensive for another reason. They couldn't know how much more their costs might be if a government-established board had power to fix the working rules.

So, all in all, the railroad representatives realized that they could not bargain in the customary way and hold out for better terms as the union representatives had done in more than five years of jockeying in negotiations. A settlement, therefore, had to come. But who was to say in a few days of critical parleys which proposals had to be accepted? Here the pressure by government, exerted by the Secretary of Labor and government-appointed mediators, came into play. It was simply a case of "take it or leave it," with a hidden warning. For, when the mediators spoke, everyone knew they had behind them a club possessed by and about to be used by the President himself.

This, of course, isn't a "free collective-bargaining process." It introduces a third party, euphemistically identified as the "public interest." It means nevertheless an arbitrary usurpation of governmental power without the explicit sanction of Congress.

Indeed, the "public interest" will not be fully served until the Congress, by law, defines and limits the right to strike on the railroads. Thursday the President not only delivered his reply personally but he invited Cathy to visit the White House.

Perhaps the return to normalcy comes just in time.

"You're the father of Cathy May Baker," she twitted her father, John T. Baker, Thursday as she joined Johnson and some 6,000 others at McCormick Place for a fund-raising dinner.

She also told her mother, "The President's nice, I think I'll write another letter so I can see him again."

Cathy wrote a letter to Johnson two weeks ago, asking him to "keep the trains running" so her grandmother could come to see her make her first Holy Communion.

Cathy was on hand at O'Hare International Airport to greet the President and Mrs. Johnson Thursday. The President came to Chicago to make an address at a Democratic party fund-raising dinner.

Spotted by Ladybird

She was greeted by Mrs. Johnson, who spotted her first.

"You're a sweet girl. I saw you on television and read all about you," said the First Lady as she gave Cathy one of a bouquet of a dozen red roses.

Then Johnson picked up Cathy, kissed her and gave her his answering letter.

"I'm sorry I didn't get to answer your letter before I went on television, but if I deliver it in person, I hope you will forgive me," the letter said in part.

"I'm very proud to have a friend like you. I hope all girls and boys of America follow the news of your time the way you have done and that they will always feel like writing to their President."

Glancing Over TV Bill of Fare

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Television has been getting loose-tongued lately. CBS, alerted, has moved to cut the swearing out of its programs.

Michael Dann, program vice president, in a short note to producers Wednesday noted "an increase in the use of expressions which a significant number of viewers find unacceptable."

"While we do not permit under any circumstances references to the deity in other than reverent fashion," the memo continued, "a number of dramatic episodes have employed 'hell' 'damn' and the like. We do not wish so to restrict creative effort as to emasculate or bowdlerize our programs. Nevertheless, I am convinced that the instances of the use of questionable slang can be further and significantly reduced."

Dann said that many complaints had been received from viewers about offensive language, and that there had also been expressions of unhappiness from affiliated television stations which use their programs.

Even casual television viewers have noticed, on all networks, more frequent and incidental use of strong words and phrases which in many homes are considered shocking.

All networks might do a little cracking down, too, on the deliberate double entendres that pop up in variety shows (Red Skelton and Johnny Carson seem to reach for them). From time to time, there is a mildly dirty joke. Some viewers are shocked; others find them merely childish and vulgar. Either way, it is offensive.

Recommended weekend viewing:

Tonight — "Time for Elizabeth," NBC, 8:30-9:30 (Eastern Standard Time), Groucho Marx and his wife, Eden, play leads in a comedy which Groucho wrote and in which he has toured.

Saturday — "The Defenders," CBS, 8:30-9:30 p.m., Glynis Johns plays a kleptomanic about to be sent to prison for life as a fourth offender.

Sunday — "Bonanza," NBC, 9-10 p.m., a story of racial tensions and discrimination in the Old West.

Begley Meant It

Oscar Gesture of Thanks Typical of Star

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Life didn't exactly begin at 62 for big Ed Begley—but it brightened considerably.

For it was at that age last year that he finally reached the Olympus of the theatrical profession. He won an Academy Award for his role as Southern political boss in the film version of the Tennessee Williams play, "Sweet Bird of Youth."

Even Thanked Agent

Somewhat dazed, clutching the Oscar excitedly, Ed Begley did an unusual thing. In a brief acceptance speech he thanked —of all people—the agent who had gotten him the role.

The gesture was typical of Begley, one of the kindest and best-liked performers in show business.

"Gratitude means a very great deal to me," he said at lunch the other day in a booming voice that made waiters snap to attention 20 feet away. They turned, stared, then smiled at Begley, a seam-faced, craggy-featured man who looks like a gentle grizzly bear.

"I have been helped by so many people along the way. They say someone has to give you that first chance. Well, a lot of people gave me first chances."

Begley feels he inherited his acting ambitions from his father, a Kerry County Irishman who migrated to Hartford, Conn., and became a hod carrier.

"My father could mimic any dialect and knew hundreds of songs and stories. He loved to entertain people—for the fun he got out of it."

Quit School Early

Ed quit school in the fifth grade. Starting at the age of 11, he made a series of runaway trips from home. He worked for carnivals, fairs, and small circuses. They gave him a rough but educational experience of life.

Radio proved his first big stepping stone to fame. During the 1930s and early 1940s he appeared on more than 12,000 programs. He was doctor, detective gangster — anything the program required.

In 1947 he went to Hollywood and acted in 21 pictures in four years. He also has starred in half a dozen Broadway hits, 75 or more television shows, and made several phonograph albums.

He Leaves the Baloney

DETROIT (AP)— A woman's fright cost a would-be bandit $10 Thursday.

Ordering a pound of baloney and offering a $10 bill, the man tricked grocery store operator Madeline Aluia into opening the cash register. Then he pointed a gun.

Mrs. Aluia, 57, screamed and ran out holding his $10 bill.

South's Response Was Mandatory

BY OSWALD JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Virginia Ploehm of Wilmette, Ill., uses several hands in teaching the use of the takeout double. They are designed to illustrate points in both bidding and play.

North has a very strong takeout double of West's opening diamond bid. East attempts to interrupt his opponents' line of communication by jumping to three diamonds and South is rather happy about the whole thing. He has no desire to bid with his piece of cheese.

So North doubles a second time and it is up to South to respond. He has a blank hand, but Virginia points out that the fact that your hand is almost worthless does not excuse you from the responsibility of responding to a take out double, thus South bids three spades.

Probably that three spade call will be made in the voice of a man being slowly strangled, but that should not hold North back. He will bid four spades anyway and it will be up to South to play the game contract.

He will win the opening club lead in dummy and will note that he cannot afford to play trumps right away.

He sees one loser in each suit, but can get rid of his club loser if he can get a discard on a heart. Therefore, it is up to him to knock out the ace of hearts immediately. He does that. Clubs are continued, but he is able to take his club discard in time.

Five-Year Success Rate Is High

Pioneer in Tooth Transplants Role of Philadelphia Dentist

By STAN BENJAMIN

PHILADELPHIA, (AP) — "Well, I had a youngster who was losing teeth, and another youngster who had too many teeth. I had to remove one for orthodontic reasons. It seemed a shame to just throw it out."

So, Dr. Ralph R. Mezrow, 43, a Philadelphia dentist, decided to plant the left-over tooth from one patient in the mouth of the other patient who needed it. The transplant worked.

That was five years ago. Since then Mezrow has planted another five teeth in the mouth of that first patient.

Only Few Failures

He and his associates at Philadelphia's Albert Einstein Medical Center have planted some 95 teeth in a total of about 70 patients. Only a few of the transplants have failed.

"The worst that can happen is that the tooth just comes loose. The funny thing is that if that happens, the people who had the transplant always want to try again," Mezrow says.

Three types of persons usually write, asking for transplants: Persons who were, through some quirk of nature, born without teeth and never had any, persons who lost teeth in auto accidents; and persons who can't tolerate dentures.

The technique still is considered experimental and there are many unanswered questions.

Mezrow carried on his transplant experiments for the first few years alone.

Received Grant

Last June, the National Institures of Health supplied a grant of $61,280 to continue the studies. About half the transplants have been done in the past nine months.

Science has found that the human body has a natural defense, called the immune reaction, with which the body rejects foreign substances. This reaction rejects healthy tissue used in a graft or transplant.

Certain specific materials low in blood vessels, such as bone and the cornea of the eye, seem to arouse little reaction and have been successfully transplanted for years.

Along with his transplants Mezrow has performed a few "autografts", transplanting a tooth to a new location in the same mouth. This eliminates any immune reaction. In both cases the transplants have been generally successful.

Simple Operation

For the patient, a transplant presents few problems. It is performed under local anesthetic; it usually takes about 45 minutes, and the patient usually can go about his normal activities the next day.

Donor teeth are stored in a cool saline solution, for up to a month, until needed. After anesthetic, the dentist opens the gum. Then he fits the tooth into the empty socket, shaping the socket with a drill until the tooth fits snugly.

The tooth is inserted and the gum is sewn together. Sometimes a plastic splint is added, which braces the new tooth for several weeks.

Child Health Clinic

A child health conference, conducted by the Ulster County Health Department will be held at the Hasbrouck Hall, Modena, Thursday, May 7, from 1 to 2 p. m. These clinics are limited to infant and pre-school children for the purpose of improving child health through early recognition of defects, advice regarding nutrition, instruction of parents in understanding of growth and development, handling of minor behavior difficulties and the administering of immunizations for smallpox, diphtheria, tetanus, whooping cough and polio.

Rocky Signs Bill

Mental Patient Commitment Now Up to Physicians

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Physicians rather than judges will decide whether a person should be confined in a mental institution, under the terms of a bill signed by Gov. Rockefeller.

The new law, effective in September, 1965, abolishes the traditional system by which a judge ordered involuntary commitment of mental patients.

Under the new system, however, a patient still would have opportunity for a court review to safeguard his constitutional rights.

Under the new approach, the necessity for treatment will be certified by two doctors.

The law also sets up a mental health information service as an arm of the courts to gather information on specific cases and to advise patients and their relatives of their rights for legal review.

The courts also will examine the status of mental patients periodically to determine whether they should remain in mental hospitals.

Another aspect of the law provides for encouragement of greater use of voluntary and informal admission procedures.

Rockefeller said in signing the bill that it recognized the medical necessity for prompt treatment of psychiatric problems while preserving the rights of the individuals involved.

Principal Fired By Board Must Go Back: Ruling

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The supervising principal of the Crown Point Central School District, fired in a prolonged dispute with the school board, must be reinstated, the deputy state education commissioner says.

Deputy Commissioner Ewald B. Nyquist ruled Thursday in favor of the principal, Fred D. Walsh, but said neither side was blameless in the controversy.

The school board last Nov. 11 found against Walsh on 15 charges, including insubordination, incompetence and neglect of duty, and fired him. He appealed the board's action.

Contacted in Crown Point after Nyquist's decision, Walsh said it was "always nice to be vindicated."

He said he had not worked since his dismissal and intended to return to his school post.

Nyquist ordered the school board to pay Walsh his full salary for the period he has been off the job. Walsh estimated the district owed him about $9,500.

Nyquist said in his opinion that the charges against Walsh had not been proven and, in any event, were not sufficient to warrant his dismissal.

Woman's Mouth Is Full of Bills, She Admits Theft

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Detectives searched a departing airliner at Municipal Air Terminal Thursday after one of its passengers reported his billfold disappeared from a counter while he was checking his baggage.

They found it—empty—beside a seat occupied by a woman who identified herself as Lucille Lightfoot, 35, of Chicago.

Sgt. Russell Fisher couldn't understand her mumbled replies to questions and asked her to get rid of her chewing gum. The wad consisted of five $100 bills, claimed by Carl Spencer Aycock of La Center, Ky., and Chicago.

The woman was booked for investigation of larceny, and Sgt. Fisher said she admitted the theft.

LBJ Proposal Is Unwise, Barry Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's offer of intelligence briefings to avert a campaign "knock-down, drag-out" on foreign affairs has drawn a sharp rejection from Sen. Barry Goldwater.

Two other Republicans said they would accept the President's invitation.

Others Silent

The rest of the men on Johnson's guest list of potential Republican nominees remained silent.

Johnson first announced the invitation last Monday. He expanded it at a news conference Thursday, saying "I would like to confer with them and have their suggestions from time to time on what the wise course to pursue is."

And Secretary of State Dean Rusk wrote six Republicans and a Democrat, formally asking them to hear intelligence reports from him, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Director John A. McCone of the Central Intelligence Agency.

The names on Johnson's list: Goldwater, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton, Harold E. Stassen and Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace.

Through a spokesman, Sen. Smith said she would accept the invitation and added she would be "delighted to confer with the President any time he calls, on anything."

Scranton said the offer doesn't apply to him—"I'm not a presidential aspirant." But he added he would attend the briefings because "I like to be informed about everything in our government."

Out for Time Being

Goldwater turned down Rusk's formal invitation—"for the time being.

"If the Republican convention nominates me I will, of course, expect that the regular briefings made available to other candidates in the past will be discussed by us as a separate matter," he said.

But at this point in the campaign, he said the proposal is unwise.

"Members of the Congress and the Senate are not without information," Goldwater said. "Much of the top secret material that the Pentagon has been releasing for political purposes recently has been known to us too—but we have not tried to or wanted to violate secrecy by throwing the data around as freely as this administration has been."

Nine Candidates File for Three Ellenville Jobs

Nine candidates have filed petitions in the Ellenville Central School District, seeking posts on the Board of Education at the election in May. The terms of three incumbent members expire this year.

Rodney Terwilliger is the only one of three seeking election for another term. It was reported that Mrs. Florence Kirby and Philip Kinberg have declined to run again, after they completed one-year terms on the Board.

Voters will elect three Board members, each for a term of three years.

Other candidates are: Charles Nesbitt, Irving Esrig, Frank Sahler, of Ellenville; Charles Burger of Wawarsing, Ben Miller, Reuben Benson and Ron Willard, also of Ellenville and Francis Irwin of Napanoch.

State Denies

architects, as Mr. Resnick appears to recommend.

Third, the Division has not supported the use of out-of-state brick over Hudson Valley brick in State-financed projects. In August, 1963, following extensive meetings between members of our technical staff and representatives of the Hudson Valley brick industry, the Division altered its specifications to authorize the use of mild weather brick, one type of brick manufactured in the Hudson Valley area, where it met certain specified conditions considered essential by our technical staff.

Would Be Approved

"To date, no architect has specified the use of such brick though if it were specified and it met the standards which we have established it would be approved."

"To charge, however, that we have favored out-of-state brick over Hudson Valley brick entirely ignores the facts."

"The fact is that there are currently under construction under the State's limited-profit housing program eleven projects which are using a severe weather brick manufactured in the Hudson Valley area. These projects contain a total of 9,661 apartments, quite a thriving market for brick from the Hudson Valley. In addition, all ten State-financed low rent projects with 5,397 apartments currently under construction in New York City are using Hudson Valley brick.

Program Helps Valley

"It is far from accurate, therefore, to charge that we have given any sort of preference to out-of-state brick. On the contrary, our program is a majjor contributor to the present operation of the brick industry in the Hudson Valley area."

Savings, Loan League Elects

Carlino Criticizes Deficit Financing to Run Government

"Nothing is free in government", Joseph F. Carlino, speaker of the New York State Assembly, told the Southeastern New York League of Savings and Loan Associations at their annual dinner meeting at Williams Lake Thursday night.

Speaker Carlino was late in arriving at the meeting due to the fact that he had been at the New York World's Fair where Governor Rockefeller dedicated the New York State Pavilion earlier in the day.

Dealing fundamentally with the expense of government, Speaker Carlino said the government in itself produced nothing. It is the people themselves who pay for government and whatever funds the government has to send to states, cities and communities must first come from the people themselves.

He opposed large federal interference with local government and said that the actual effect of federal government intervention at the local level was costly to the local taxpayer. The actual effect is that for every $3 taken from the local taxpayer only about $1 gets back to the community. He also opposed deficit financing and cited the City of New York, which relied to a great extent on bond issues for new projects, even though these projects may be for short duration. New York City pays close to a half billion dollars a year for debt service.

Stresses Private Enterprise

Much of the inefficiency of government spending is due to "red tape" and in citing the inefficiency of government spending, Carlino, compared it to private enterprise.

Taking the World's Fair as an example, he said the buildings erected by private enterprises, such as General Motors, Ford and other companies, had been completed long before the fair opened while the uncompleted structures were those erected by governments.

The speaker said the government should undertake and intervene in work only where private enterprise was unable to perform the service. He cited numerous instances of the inefficiency of government as compared to private enterprise.

Following his talk there was a question and answer period.

Officers Elected

At the afternoon business session William Stall, assistant vice-president of the Savings and Loan Association of Kingston, and president of the League presided. Elected to succeed Mr. Stall as president of the League was John F. Meehan, secretary of the Goshen Co-operative Savings and Loan Association.

Turk Is Killed Under U.N. Eyes

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — An elderly Turkish Cypriot was shot in the back while crossing a street outside Nicosia today under the eyes of U.N. troops.

A British officer at a post a few yards from where the Turk fell said he was killed by fire from a Greek Cypriot advance post 75 feet away.

Guns continued to rattle in Ayios Theodoros, a mixed Greek-Turkish village 30 miles south of Nicosia, despite a U.N. cease-fire. A Turk was wounded in shooting there Thursday.

Further trouble was feared between Greek Cypriots and British members of the U.N. force. Scores of Greeks brawled with 50 British soldiers in Nicosia's main square Thursday. Several Greeks and British soldiers were injured.

LBJ Proposal Is Unwise, Barry Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's offer of intelligence briefings to avert a campaign "knock-down, drag-out" on foreign affairs has drawn a sharp rejection from Sen. Barry Goldwater.

Two other Republicans said they would accept the President's invitation.

Others Silent

The rest of the men on Johnson's guest list of potential Republican nominees remained silent.

Johnson first announced the invitation last Monday. He expanded it at a news conference Thursday, saying "I would like to confer with them and have their suggestions from time to time on what the wise course to pursue is."

And Secretary of State Dean Rusk wrote six Republicans and a Democrat, formally asking them to hear intelligence reports from him, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Director John A. McCone of the Central Intelligence Agency.

The names on Johnson's list: Goldwater, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton, Harold E. Stassen and Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace.

Through a spokesman, Sen. Smith said she would accept the invitation and added she would be "delighted to confer with the President any time he calls, on anything."

Scranton said the offer doesn't apply to him—"I'm not a presidential aspirant." But he added he would attend the briefings because "I like to be informed about everything in our government."

Out for Time Being

Goldwater turned down Rusk's formal invitation—"for the time being.

"If the Republican convention nominates me I will, of course, expect that the regular briefings made available to other candidates in the past will be discussed by us as a separate matter," he said.

But at this point in the campaign, he said the proposal is unwise.

"Members of the Congress and the Senate are not without information," Goldwater said. "Much of the top secret material that the Pentagon has been releasing for political purposes recently has been known to us too—but we have not tried to or wanted to violate secrecy by throwing the data around as freely as this administration has been."

Nine Candidates File for Three Ellenville Jobs

Nine candidates have filed petitions in the Ellenville Central School District, seeking posts on the Board of Education at the election in May. The terms of three incumbent members expire this year.

Rodney Terwilliger is the only one of three seeking election for another term. It was reported that Mrs. Florence Kirby and Philip Kinberg have declined to run again, after they completed one-year terms on the Board.

Voters will elect three Board members, each for a term of three years.

Other candidates are: Charles Nesbitt, Irving Esrig, Frank Sahler, of Ellenville; Charles Burger of Wawarsing, Ben Miller, Reuben Benson and Ron Willard, also of Ellenville and Francis Irwin of Napanoch.

State Denies

architects, as Mr. Resnick appears to recommend.

Third, the Division has not supported the use of out-of-state brick over Hudson Valley brick in State-financed projects. In August, 1963, following extensive meetings between members of our technical staff and representatives of the Hudson Valley brick industry, the Division altered its specifications to authorize the use of mild weather brick, one type of brick manufactured in the Hudson Valley area, where it met certain specified conditions considered essential by our technical staff.

Would Be Approved

"To date, no architect has specified the use of such brick though if it were specified and it met the standards which we have established it would be approved."

"To charge, however, that we have favored out-of-state brick over Hudson Valley brick entirely ignores the facts."

"The fact is that there are currently under construction under the State's limited-profit housing program eleven projects which are using a severe weather brick manufactured in the Hudson Valley area. These projects contain a total of 9,661 apartments, quite a thriving market for brick from the Hudson Valley. In addition, all ten State-financed low rent projects with 5,397 apartments currently under construction in New York City are using Hudson Valley brick.

Program Helps Valley

"It is far from accurate, therefore, to charge that we have given any sort of preference to out-of-state brick. On the contrary, our program is a majjor contributor to the present operation of the brick industry in the Hudson Valley area."

Savings, Loan League Elects

Carlino Criticizes Deficit Financing to Run Government

"Nothing is free in government", Joseph F. Carlino, speaker of the New York State Assembly, told the Southeastern New York League of Savings and Loan Associations at their annual dinner meeting at Williams Lake Thursday night.

Speaker Carlino was late in arriving at the meeting due to the fact that he had been at the New York World's Fair where Governor Rockefeller dedicated the New York State Pavilion earlier in the day.

Dealing fundamentally with the expense of government, Speaker Carlino said the government in itself produced nothing. It is the people themselves who pay for government and whatever funds the government has to send to states, cities and communities must first come from the people themselves.

He opposed large federal interference with local government and said that the actual effect of federal government intervention at the local level was costly to the local taxpayer. The actual effect is that for every $3 taken from the local taxpayer only about $1 gets back to the community. He also opposed deficit financing and cited the City of New York, which relied to a great extent on bond issues for new projects, even though these projects may be for short duration. New York City pays close to a half billion dollars a year for debt service.

Stresses Private Enterprise

Much of the inefficiency of government spending is due to "red tape" and in citing the inefficiency of government spending, Carlino, compared it to private enterprise.

Taking the World's Fair as an example, he said the buildings erected by private enterprises, such as General Motors, Ford and other companies, had been completed long before the fair opened while the uncompleted structures were those erected by governments.

The speaker said the government should undertake and intervene in work only where private enterprise was unable to perform the service. He cited numerous instances of the inefficiency of government as compared to private enterprise.

Following his talk there was a question and answer period.

Officers Elected

At the afternoon business session William Stall, assistant vice-president of the Savings and Loan Association of Kingston, and president of the League presided. Elected to succeed Mr. Stall as president of the League was John F. Meehan, secretary of the Goshen Co-operative Savings and Loan Association.

Robert Ungemah, manager of of the New City office of the Empire State Federal Savings and Loan Association of New City, was elected first vice-president. Fred J. Braun, secretary-treasurer of the Nanuet, N. Y., Savings and Loan Association, was elected League secretary-treasurer.

At an afternoon panel discussion on Public Relations, President John F. Meehan presided. Members of the panel were Lyndon Boyd, Lewis J. Rub, William Bodine, John Arfman Jr., and James Tully, assistant to the Deputy Superintendent of Banks of the State of New York.

The Southeastern League is composed of Savings and Loan Associations in Dutchess, Rockland, Sullivan, Orange and Ulster counties.

HopeAmendment Will Crack Dixie Impasse on Rights

WASHINGTON (AP) — A leadership-sponsored jury trial amendment to the civil rights bill sparked hopes today of cracking the Senate's impasse over the measure.

Sens. Mike Mansfield and Everett M. Dirksen, the Democratic and Republican leaders, prepared to introduce the amendment as the Senate debate entered its 39th day.

They planned to present it as a substitute for one offered earlier by Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., acting for Southern foes of the legislation.

The efforts to resolve the jury trial issue were only part of the moves afoot to work out compromises and get the civil rights bill off dead center.

But growing signs of optimism were evident, and were noted by the bipartisan floor managers for the bill—Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif.

While details were not disclosed in advance, indications were that the Mansfield-Dirksen proposal would be along the lines of a compromise provision that helped win passage of the 1957 Civil Rights Act.

Under the 1957 act, a person convicted of contempt for violating an injunction against discriminatory denial of voting rights can obtain a retrial before a jury if sentenced by a judge to more than 45 days or fined more than $300.

Dirksen told newsmen that once his and Mansfield's substitute for Talmadge's amendment is called up, he thought the jury trial issue could be disposed of quickly.

Bill Discourages Cigarette Sale To Those Under 18

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—A bill designed to discourage sale of cigarettes to youths under 18 had Gov. Rockefeller's signature today.

The measure requires that stores selling tobacco products post signs bearing the legend: "Sale of cigarettes, cigars and other tobacco products to persons under 18 years of age is prohibited by law."

The new law, effective July 1, is the direct result of the U.S. surgeon general's report declaring cigarettes to be a cause of lung cancer and other health problems.

Action Due Before Sunday

The governor announced without comment today that he had signed the bill on Wednesday.

The bill was among more than 200 on which the governor announced his decisions as the deadline approached for action on measures passed by the 1964 Legislature.

Rockefeller must complete action by midnight Saturday.

In decisions on major legislation within the last 24 hours, the governor has:

—Signed a bill to advance the concept of mental illness as a medical problem along the same lines of other illnesses. The measure provides for involuntary admission to mental institutions on certification of two physicians, eliminating the traditional court commitment procedure.

—Approved legislation under which the Court of Claims will rule on the State Thruway Authority's argument that it did work to offset a $24-million debt.

Other Actions

—Vetoed a bill for state regulation of trading-stamp companies on the ground that the measure had so many defects that it might affect consumers adversely, rather than give them the protection intended.

—Approved bills to curb financial abuses in the legitimate theater, including the sale by theater officials at inflated prices of hard-to-get tickets to hit shows.

—Signed a bill establishing procedures to control construction of hospitals and nursing homes in an effort to prevent erection of unnecessary facilities that add to the total cost of medical care in the state.

—Vetoed a measure that would have brought marriage counselors under state regulation.

—Signed a bill authorizing voters on vacation to cast absentee ballots in a general election.

Vetoes Firemen's Bill

—Approved a measure setting the minimum salary of case workers in local welfare departments at $4,500 a year but vetoed a bill that would have set firemen's salaries in a range of $3,600-$6,000 a year. The bill would have applied to communities outside of New York City.

—Vetoed a bill that would have established a five-member state agency to hear and act on complaints of local governments that they had been treated unfairly by state agencies in distribution of state aid. The governor said the bill was contrary to his goal of simplifying state government.

—Rejected a bill that would have prohibited the sale in New York State of white bread or rolls baked outside the state if the State Agriculture Department determined the state of origin had health and inspection standards below those of New York. The bill was intended to curb the import of Canadian bread into Western New York, where bakeries have complained of the competition.

Boycott Against Castro Is Far From Success for U. S.

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two stories on the same day may seem ironic to American allies and the Communist world but make sense to the Johnson administration.

This one Thursday:

Undersecretary of State George Ball told U.S. allies that selling locomotives to Cuba (the French are reported considering it) "would have an even greater impact" in support of Fidel Castro than the recent sale of British buses.

And this one Thursday:

The United States is seriously considering the sale of synthetic rubber plants to Communist Romania, authoritative sources reported.

Picture All Mixed Up

Why would it be wrong—from the American view—for an ally to sell Castro locomotives but perhaps all right for the United States to sell a synthetic rubber plant to Romania, since both countries are linked to Russia?

To mix the picture up some more the Allies have sold many things to Communist countries and this country has given assistance to Yugoslavia, sold wheat to Russia, and had good tariff relations with Poland.

The United States wants to strangle Castro economically and thus wreck him or force changes in communism in Cuba. How? By a boycott shutting off all trade with him, particularly in items which might help him survive.

Costs Russia Million Daily

And, the thinking goes, the harder up he is, the more of a drain he will be on Russia which is now estimated to be helping him at the rate of about $1 million a day.

Ball said in a speech at Roanoke, Va., the locomotives would help the Cuban economy because its main export, sugar, is carried to port almost entirely by rail and her railroad system is "presently in a critical state of disrepair."

He explained that while Castro is not a military threat to the United States it is a Communist menace to Latin America by trying to subvert governments and set off terror campaigns.

Busy With West

But Romania is considered a leading example of a Communist nation trying to loosen its ties with Moscow and is busily pursuing trade with other Western nations.

An ally might ask: If Castro can't get help from any of the Western nations, and therefore must rely more and more on Moscow, then wouldn't his ties with Russia be strengthened instead of weakened?

Secretary of State Dean Rusk has acknowledged that the United States treats different Communist countries differently, and he gave three reasons:

To encourage the individual Communist nations toward more independence and internal freedom; to try to work out relations or agreements with various Communist states to reduce the danger of war; and to make the expansion of communism too costly to be worthwhile, which is what this country hopes in the case of its boycott on Cuba.

But—the American attempt to get its allies and friends to boycott Castro is far from successful. The French have sold him about $10 million in trucks, the British about $11 million in buses. Yugoslavia, Spain and Morocco have dealt with him.

Last month Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate's Foreign Relations Committee, said the U.S. economic policy toward Cuba is a failure:

"I am not arguing against the desirability of a boycott but against its feasibility. It is simply not within our power to compel our allies to cut off trade with Cuba unless we are prepared to take drastic sanctions against them."

The United States hasn't shown any willingness to invoke drastic sanctions. It has tried mild ones.

Meanwhile, the Western nations, seeing their chance to make a buck, do more and more trading with communism. In 1961, the last year for which complete figures are available, the Communist bloc imported $5 billion worth of goods from the West.

Governor Vetoes, Assails N. Y. on Custodian Pay

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—In one of his most strongly worded vetoes of the year, Gov. Rockefeller charged New York City with failure to correct a situation in which school custodians have been earning up to $53,000 a year.

The Republican governor announced Thursday he had vetoed a Democratic-sponsored bill that would have required the city's school board and the custodians to bargain on the amount of compensation.

"The only apparent purpose of the bill," Rockefeller said, "is to provide an excuse—albeit sham—for the failure to take effective action against this abuse before—or since—its disclosure last year."

The governor said the bill would have "deliberately perpetuated the discredited system" under which some custodians earned salaries that ranged beyond those of the school superintendent and mayor of New York City.

Governor Vetoes, Assails N. Y. on Custodian Pay

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—In one of his most strongly worded vetoes of the year, Gov. Rockefeller charged New York City with failure to correct a situation in which school custodians have been earning up to $53,000 a year.

The Republican governor announced Thursday he had vetoed a Democratic-sponsored bill that would have required the city's school board and the custodians to bargain on the amount of compensation.

"The only apparent purpose of the bill," Rockefeller said, "is to provide an excuse—albeit sham—for the failure to take effective action against this abuse before—or since—its disclosure last year."

The governor said the bill would have "deliberately perpetuated the discredited system" under which some custodians earned salaries that ranged beyond those of the school superintendent and mayor of New York City.

More for Transfers

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The Niagara Frontier Transit System Inc. had state permission today to raise the price of its bus transfers from 2 to 5 cents.

The Public Service Commission said Wednesday, in announcing approv' of the request, that the higher rate would go into effect Sunday and would apply to all routes except those wholly within Niagara Falls.

The company predicted the new rate would raise its income by $414,200 a year. The PSC said the boost was authorized "in recognition of the financial needs of the company."

Accused of Stabbing

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — A 39-year-old Negro, accused of stabbing a farm laborer during a fight, today faces a charge of second-degree murder.

James B. Hawthorne was arrested Thursday after police found the body of Roosevelt Tripp lying on a street here.

Police said Hawthorn told them he had found Tripp, also a Negro, visiting Hawthorn's wife in the Hawthorn apartment and that the men began fighting.

Dogs, Hoses Quell County Jail Riot

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Police with dogs and fire hoses Thursday night quelled a riot in the Dallas County Jail that involved about 150 Negro prisoners and lasted three and one-half hours.

One jailer, Ray Masters, 50, was wounded superficially, Sheriff Bill Decker said, with a razor blade broken into two pieces and wielded by two inmates.

No Prisoners Hurt

The sheriff said no prisoners were hurt in the disturbance.

Decker said he had gone to the jail about 7:30 p.m. to talk to a group of prisoners who had been shouting, "We want justice," and rattling tin cups on their cell bars. He said they protested about food, crowded conditions and infrequent use of the telephone.

After talking to the prisoners, Decker said he thought everything had quieted until a short time later when the riot erupted.

Decker said Masters went into the safety vestibule where a fight had started and two men crowded into the safety vestibule with the jailer. As he sought to get them back into the corridor, they slashed him with the broken razor blade.

Prisoners in three corridors of the seventh floor then began shouting, cursing and tearing up their mattresses. Decker said at least three mattresses were torn to bits, set afire and thrown to the street below, a short distance from the point where President John F. Kennedy was assassinated last Nov. 22.

Jack Ruby, convicted slayer of Lee Harvey Oswald, Kennedy's accused assassin, is held in the jail awaiting appeal of his death sentence assessed by a jury March 14.

It was from this same jail building that seven prisoners made a sensational escape during the Ruby murder trial. Two men still are at large.

Governor Acts On Vehicle Bills

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Legislation that would have made driving with unsafe brakes a traffic infraction, rather than a more serious misdemeanor, has been rejected by Gov. Rockefeller.

Rockefeller also vetoed bills that would have exempted farm trucks from tire-safety regulations and given owners of buses used to transport children to and from summer camps the option of using equipment that would give the buses the same protections afforded school buses.

The governor's decisions on the bills were reached Wednesday and announced Thursday.

Among details of the motor-vehicle measures:

BUSES—Present law requires buses used to transport children to and from summer camps, or child-care centers serving migrant-labor camps, to be marked "school bus" and to have flashing red lights front and rear. When they are stopped, other vehicles may not pass the buses in either direction.

The bill vetoed by the governor would have made the school bus sign and flashing lights optional with the owner.

Defrosters — The governor signed a bill requiring that all new automobiles registered in the state after Oct. 1 have a defroster for the front windshield on the driver's side.

Parking — Rockefeller vetoed as too sweeping legislation that would have given "almost unlimited" parking privileges to amputees and paraplegics.

Motorcycles— Legislation that would have provided for special tests and licenses for motorcycle operators was rejected by Rockefeller because he said the bill did not make clear how it would apply to present holders of drivers' licenses.

CR Group Pledges To Close Schools Again in Chester

CHESTER, Pa. (AP)—Chester school officials who closed the city's 18 public schools Wednesday because they feared for the safety of the pupils say they will reopen the schools next week.

But civil rights demonstrators say they'll close them again.

Set for Tuesday

Mrs. Francis P. Donahoo, president of the school board, said Thursday that one of the public schools will be reopened Monday and, if there are no further incidents, the junior high schools and elementary schools would be reopened Tuesday.

At a rally Thursday night, however, Frank Brooks treasurer of the Committee for Freedom Now, said, "We're going to close them up again."

John J. Vaul, assistant superintendent of schools, said the board was going ahead with its plans despite the statement.

The demonstrators are protesting alleged de facto school segregation and have held almost daily demonstrations for the palt month.

Chester police arrested a total of 216 persons on Wednesday as civil rights groups staged sit-ins at public buildings and schools and, later protested in front of the home of a Delaware County Republican leader.

Some eight persons were injured during those demonstrations, including a newspaper reporter for the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin and three law officers. The reporter, Timothy Tyler, was also arrested and charged with assaulting an officer.

Patrol Car Stoned

Thursday night police arrested Edward Tucker, 19, of Chester, after a patrol car was stoned and two policemen injured by broken glass.

Ronald Ellis, 20, of Chester, was arrested later and charged with disorderly conduct after reportedly shouting insults at a policeman.

At the Thursday night rally, Brooks accused Chester and State Police of brutality in tions.

Louis Brown, vice president of the Chester chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, told the demonstrators: "Don't damage cars and don't hurt people. They don't do it in Birmingham (Ala.) or Jackson (Miss.). It would hurt our cause," he said.

Another speaker, Louis Smith, regional director of the Congress of Racial Equality, said that National CORE director James Farmer, arrested in demonstrations at the New York World's Fair Wednesday, would be released today and would come to Chester to speak at a rally tonight and then lead a protest march.

Dr. Schweitzer Seen as Bar To 'Civilization' of Africa

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

LAMBARENE, Gabon (AP)—In his jungle hospital on the banks of the Ogooue River, Dr. Albert Schweitzer defies Africa's rush toward the white man's idea of progress.

"I have lived here for 54 years. I know what's best for Africans," says the 89-year-old winner of the Nobel Peace Prize.

His hospital has treated more than 50,000 Africans in its 40-year existence. They continue to come in growing numbers to the filth-strewn shacks serving as wards — disregarding a new, gleaming hospital built by the French on nearby Lambarene Island.

"Here they find conditions to which they are accustomed and they know they will be cured," says the old man with bushy white eyebrows.

Controversial Figure

Dr. Schweitzer has become one of the most controversial figures in restless Africa. The problem narrows down to whether the continent should force its development or should be left to itself and its traditions.

"Africa—" he begins, and dismisses the subject with a wave.

"There is no point in writing all this," he says with an ironic smile. "They are trying to stir the people up against me."

"They" are the few educated Africans who head the continent's sometimes reckless move toward European-type civilization. Their critics — European and African alike—accuse them of frequently overlooking the most valid parts of Western civilization for the glitter of superficial progress.

Said a French official working for the Gabon government: "For years we have been thinking of forcing him to introduce some idea of hygiene, adopt modern treatment methods. But we are powerless. He has millions of dollars and influential people behind him."

Dr. Schweitzer has heard all this. He sees only one thing—that the black man from the bush continues to come for help to him and his doctors, some of whom come from the world's best hospitals.

Sick Given Numbers

Some sick are carried by relatives over 200 miles of forest paths. Once in the hospital, they get a ticket with a number. It is explained "Afrian names are too complicated — who knows how to spell them anyway?"

Families stay with the sick, sleeping on the floor next to their beds. The beds are one of Dr. Schweitzer's concessions to European comfort.

The patients are issued staple food rations to be cooked by their relatives.

To Schwietzer and his staff the problem is simple—you cannot give an African two pills and tell him to take them on two different occasions. He has to be given one pill at a time and supervised when swallowing it.

No Bath Room Facilities

There are no showers in the hospital—the sick are washed by their families in the Ogooue. There is no latrine "because they are not used to it."

No nurses are on duty in the wards but 15 work in the hospital. Families alert the doctors in case of emergency.

Will Talk With Sportsmen on Deer Before Surveys

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The State Conservation Department has answered sportsmen's attacks on its killing of deer for biological surveys with a pledge to consult them in advance of any such projects in the future.

Conservation Commissioner Harold G. Wilm met Tuesday with the Hamilton County Board of Supervisors in Speculator.

The Hamilton County supervisors and others had protested what they described as "slaughter" of deer by state biologists in the Moose River area in February.

The closed-door meeting with the Hamilton County officials was arranged by Sen. Walter Van Wiggeren, R-Ilion. Van Wiggeren also attended.

Wilm is reported to have told the board that three recommendations in a board resolution would be considered thoroughly by the Conservation Department.

The board called for a 30-day deer season limited to bucks, an end to party permits under which a group of hunters could shoot a doe and appointment of a deputy commissioner for law enforcement.

Denies Spy Claim

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—The U.S. Embassy has quickly denied a claim by Swedish air force Col. Stig Wennerstrom that he began his spy career as an American agent.

Wennerstron, who served as Swedish air attache in Moscow and Washington and held high posts in the Swedish Defense Ministry, is on trial for allegedly handing over Swedish and American military secrets to the Soviet Union over a 15-year period.

Prospector Dies

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP)—One of three copper prospectors lost in the thickly wooded Blue Mountains of Jamaica for eight days died from hunger and exhaustion shortly after the three were rescued Thursday.

The men, working for a Canadian mining firm, said they ran out of food last Friday. Planes had been searching the area since Monday.

Would Reverse High Court on School Prayers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ban on official school prayers was seen today by a House member as part of "a deadly attempt to make our America officially a godless nation."

Rep. Robert L. F. Sikes, D-Fla., expressed that view in testimony prepared for the House Judiciary Committee and urged enactment of a constitutional amendment to reverse the court's decision.

Exists Everywhere

Sikes said religion should not be confined only to the church and the home.

"I believe that religion exists everywhere, and that it should be recognized everywhere," he said. "And I consider it particularly important in these days, when teaching in the home is so often neglected, that religious education be implemented in public schools and public places."

Sikes' testimony continued the barrage by House members in support of various proposed amendments to permit prayers and Bible reading in the schools.

Nearly two dozen have testified since the hearings began Wednesday and only one, Rep. John W. Davis, D-Ga., expressed approval of the Supreme Court's prayer and Bible reading decisions.

Some Are Chided

Committee members who have raised numerous questions about the constitutional difficulties involved in the problem were chided Thursday by Rep. Craig Hosmer, R-Calif., for "tilting at windmills."

Hosmer said all Congress had to do was remove any prohibition that may exist to religious exercises in public schools and leave it to local authorities to deal with any problems that may arise.

"But it's not as simple as that," said Chairman Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., "there are many different kinds of prayers and different versions of the Bible. A school board may prescribe a prayer or a Bible that are objectionable to some parents."

Reports Forged Petitions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., says he has received forged petitions from his home state condemning the civil rights bill and urging him to vote against it.

Keating said he discovered the forgeries after replying to the petitions and explaining in his letters the distortions and untruths in them.

Several persons wrote back and said they had never signed the petitions, Keating told the Senate Thursday.

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)—The South Korean government has released all 16 student leaders arrested after antigovernment demonstrations Monday and Tuesday.

Robb, A Man in Motion

Albany Publisher Is New ANPA President

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — In his home city of Albany, the name Gene Robb, who was elected president of the American Newspaper Publishers Association Thursday, means man in motion.

The soft-spoken, calm manner of the 54-year-old Hearst newspaper publisher camouflages his brisk, thorough attention to numerous interests.

T-U Boss Since 1953

He has been publisher of The Times-Union, a morning newspaper, since 1953 and of the evening Knickerbocker News since Hearst bought it in 1960. He is a director of the Associated Press.

Robb is on the board of directors of two colleges, two hospitals, and a boys' club and is chairman of the Tri-City (economic) Development Council. He is a member of the State Commission on the Capital City, which is converting a shabby 98-acre tract into a glamorous "South Mall" showplace of state buildings and parks.

It was Robb who carried the ANPA's fight against news management to a House subcommittee after the Cuban crisis.

Began as Reporter

Robb's newspaper career began as a high school reporter for the Lincoln Star in his native Nebraska. He was a police reporter for The Star while attending The University of Nebraska, where he edited the campus newspaper and received the highest average in the journalism school.

After his graduation in 1930, he worked briefly for The Star, spent a year in Europe with the American Peoples' College and a semester at Princeton's Woodrow Wilson School of Public Affairs. He joined Hearst in 1933 as editor of the "advertising Almanac."

Robb soon convinced Hearst leaders to embark on a college recruiting program for editorial advertising and business management jobs, a project he still staunchly supports.

State Head in 1959

He decided he wanted to run a newspaper while in Washington reporting for Hearst on regulations that might effect the publishing business. Studying nights, he earned a law degree.

Robb also wrote a biweekly business newsletter for seven years and, during the war, became an expert on emergency regulations and newsprint availability. He was assistant to Hearst General Manager J.D. Gortatowsky from 1946-53 and headed the New York State Publishers Association in 1959.

Paralyzed Man Is In Need of Blood, Mother Makes Plea

A plea for blood is being made by a young man hospitalized for eight years, following a tobogganing accident that paralyzed him from the shoulders down.

He is Robert Crocat, 30, a patient at Benedictine Hospital, where he is being fed intravenously since Easter Sunday.

Hsi mother, Mrs. Julia Zaborski, said "Bob really needs the blood because he is suffering from complications, aside from being a quadruplegic, and the expense is difficult for a working woman to stand."

She said Bob is being treated for kidney stones, ulcers and hemorrhages.

The tobogganing mishap in which he was injured took place February 5, 1956 at Lake Katrine. The toboggan struck a tree.

Hospitalized since, he has tried to keep up his spirit by painting oils. He holds the brush between his teeth. His work shows much talent, but he has been unable to paint for a long time.

His mother, who lives on the Lake Road, Box 381, and is employed by P. J. Gallagher Motor Repair Shop, said she would be pleased to hear from anyone wishing to donate blood. She also suggested that people could go to the city laboratory and give blood in the name of Robert Crocat.

Dr. Schweitzer Seen as Bar To 'Civilization' of Africa

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

LAMBARENE, Gabon (AP)—In his jungle hospital on the banks of the Ogooue River, Dr. Albert Schweitzer defies Africa's rush toward the white man's idea of progress.

"I have lived here for 54 years. I know what's best for Africans," says the 89-year-old winner of the Nobel Peace Prize.

His hospital has treated more than 50,000 Africans in its 40-year existence. They continue to come in growing numbers to the filth-strewn shacks serving as wards — disregarding a new, gleaming hospital built by the French on nearby Lambarene Island.

"Here they find conditions to which they are accustomed and they know they will be cured," says the old man with bushy white eyebrows.

Controversial Figure

Dr. Schweitzer has become one of the most controversial figures in restless Africa. The problem narrows down to whether the continent should force its development or should be left to itself and its traditions.

"Africa—" he begins, and dismisses the subject with a wave.

"There is no point in writing all this," he says with an ironic smile. "They are trying to stir the people up against me."

"They" are the few educated Africans who head the continent's sometimes reckless move toward European-type civilization. Their critics — European and African alike—accuse them of frequently overlooking the most valid parts of Western civilization for the glitter of superficial progress.

Said a French official working for the Gabon government:

LUNCH TREAT EMBARRASSES HER

Q: I work in a city several hundred miles from my home town. I met a young man who also works here and whose family live not too far from mine. He has a car and drives home every other weekend to see his family and he always asks me if I would like to drive home with him to visit my family. It's a wonderful break for me as I wouldn't be able to get home as often otherwise. We always stop somewhere to lunch on the way and he pays the check. I offered once to pay my own share but he refused. It embarrasses me to have him pay for my lunch as well. Will you please tell me what I can do short of refusing his invitations?

A: You might on one of these trips home pack a picnic lunch and ask him to be your "guest" at lunch for a change. If he seems to like the idea you can do this every once in a while. If he doesn't like the picnic and also refuses to have you pay your share of the check, there is nothing to do except thank him. He evidently enjoys having you along for company otherwise he wouldn't continue to ask you.

Overnight Guest

Q: My husband and I have just returned home from a relative's wedding which took place out of town. My cousin arranged for us to stay with a friend of hers who lives nearby as she couldn't put us up in her own house. We just spent the one night there and had no meals in her house. I would like to know if a bread-and-butter note is necessary in this case?

A: Yes, it would be very remiss of you not to write one.

When to Answer Wedding Invitation

Q: How soon is it necessary to reply to a formal wedding reception invitation?

A: Reply as promptly as possibly so that the family of the bride can make arrangements for the number of guests expected.

A five-run second inning was all the scoring Ron Mullen needed as he hurled Wallkill to a 10-1 UCAL decision over New Paltz yesterday at the Wallkill diamond.

The home side added single markers in the third and fourth frames and three more in the sixth. Bob Wensley had a triple and two singles while George Druttman, Art Serikstad and Ron Hanson each hit doubles.

Four RR Bettors Win $41,532.29

Four lucky ticket holders collected $41,532.20 apiece Thursday night at Roosevelt Raceway on the twin double.

The payoff resulted from Gunner Hanover's victory in the ninth race, for a return of $55.-90.

Other winners who figured in the twin double and their returns were:

Rendezvous Truder, sixth race, $16.80; Direct Rainbow, seventh, $6.50; and Dilman, eighth, $13.10.

Highest twin of the year at Roosevelt was the $54,349.50 on March 14. The record for the Long Island track, and for harness racing, is $79,660.30 on Nov. 6 of last year.

In the $5,000 invitational pace, Sampson Knight continued his winning ways in beating Skeeter Brooke by a head.

Walter Welch drove the 5-year-old gelding to his third straight triumph in 2:04 1-5. The 9-5 favorite returned $5.70. Precious Scot was third.

At Buffalo Raceway, Tropical Way won the featured $1,000 pace by three-quarters of a length over Guy Sota.

The 3-year-old gelding, driven by Jack Bailey, paced the mile in 2:04 3-5 and paid $4.50, $2.90 third.

Klonowski Gets Winning Points In Final Seconds

By ED PALLADINO
Freeman Sports Staff

Joe Klonowski potted a field goal and foul shot in the final 15 seconds and Ray's Tackle Shop of Kingston scored the biggest upset in the 11-year history of the local cage tournament, 77-76, over the Pine Plains Bombardiers last night at the Municipal Auditorium.

The local hotshots, riding the crest with a solid team effort and sparkling individual performances on the part of Ron Miller and Joe Uhl, shocked the highly favored Bombardiers with a superior all-around effort.

Klonowski put the finishing touches on the victory cake. He snapped a 74-74 tie with a basket from inside and seconds later made a free throw. It mattered not that Nick Werkman hit for the last basket of the evening for the losers. This only made the final score closer.

Take Early Lead

Trounced by more than 20 points a week ago by this same club, the Tackle Shop moved to a quick advantage in the opening minutes and remained ahead almost the entire distance.

Just before the end of the third stanza, the Bombardiers forged in front, 62-61, and appeared to be applying the pressure on the Tackle Shop players, who had hustled from start to finish and appeared on the tired side.

Bill Telasky's basket moved the pre-tourney favorites three points ahead. That was their last gesture.

Uhl, who played shoulder to shoulder with Telasky from start to finish, hit from the side and then Miller scored from underneath after taking a pass from Chick Boice. This shoved the locals in front, 65-64.

Both sides stayed within two points of each other the rest of the way before Klonowski made his key points near the end.

Miller Top Scorer

Miller scored 21 points to pace the winners. Uhl and Boice finished with 19 each and Klonowski scored 15. Werkman rimmed 18 for the Bombardiers, and its not very often you'll see this Seton Hall ace score under 25. Telasky had 16, Tom Hannon 12 and Hank Whitney 10.

The clubs will be at it again Sunday at 8 and this one will decide the championship. Win or lose the Tackle Shop exploded the myth that this Pine Plains team is unbeatable. If there have been bigger upsets, we have yet to see them.

Patty Berg's 69 Is Near Record In Titleholders

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — "I drove pretty well for the old girl," said 46-year-old Patty Berg who took a two-stroke lead over young rivals into the second round of the 25th annual Titleholders Golf Tournament today.

Miss Berg was speaking of her three-under-par 69 in the first round Thursday that boosted her into contention for her eighth Titleholders championship. She also was only one stroke away from the single-round record of 68 which she set in 1955 en route to her tournament record of 291.

"I hope the 291 is broken this time," she said. "Every time a record is broken it shows that women golfers are making progress."

Miss Berg, of St. Andrews, Ill., said she drove well throughout the round.

"I was never in the rough at all," she added.

She took only 24 putts in making four birdies, one bogey and 13 pars over the 6,300-yard Augusta Country Club course.

The 69 put her two strokes ahead of Judy Kimball of Sioux City, Iowa, and Betsy Rawls of Spartanburg, S. C. Gloria Armstrong of Alameda, Calif. and Jo Ann Prentice of Birmingham, Ala. had par 72s.

Defending champion Marilynn Smith of Runaway Bay, Jamaica, was tied with Louise Suggs of Cincinnati at 73. Tournament favorite Mickey Wright of Dallas, Tex., was tied with six others at 74, five strokes off the pace.

Trinity Cagers Hear Thayer

Harry Thayer, general manager of Station WGHQ, was guest speaker at the Father and Son Sports Award dinner honoring members of the Trinity Methodist Church Junior basketball team.

A former business manager of the professional football Philadelphia Eagles and Los Angeles Dons, Thayer stressed the importance of teamwork in any sport. He related how the Eagles developed from a 2-game winner in 1942 to the National League champions four years later. This, he said, was an outstanding example of teamwork and building for the future.

A film, "Response to Challenge" concluded the program.

Also attending the dinner were: The Rev. Roy A. Hassel, pastor; Charles Shultis, lay reader; Harry Giles, assistant superintendent of the church school; as well as other members of the parish. Mrs. Richard Schabot was in charge of the dinner assisted by Mrs. John Palen, Mrs. F. W. Thompson Sr., Mrs. DeVall Dunbar, Mrs. Roy A. Hassel and Betty Lou Brodhead. Walter Elston was thanked for his cooperation.

Key Hits, Walks Enable Locals To Win 2nd Game

Taking advantage of walks and inserting a couple of key base hits at the right time, Kingston High completed a home-and-home sweep of Roosevelt, 5-3, yesterday at Dietz Stadium.

Coach Al Gruner used four hurlers and three of them didn't allow the Presidents a hit. Sophomore lefty Gene Rios went four innings, and though he was hampered by some faulty control, the fireballer didn't issue a run or hit.

Ken Heppner retired the visitors in the sixth. Vince Fisher was hit for a single, double and triple in the sixth before Brian Bach came in to retire the side and then preserve the victory with a hitless seventh frame.

Two walks, an error, passed ball and fielders choice gave the locals a second inning run off loser Pete Ferenz. A hit batter, stolen base, error and passed ball hiked the lead to 2-0 in the fourth.

In the fifth, two walks, a fielders choice and hits by Paul Gruner and Gary Johnson netted two runs more. They were the only hits collected by the winners but they came at an opportune time.

The final tally came in the sixth and again a walk led to the run. Bach was passed, went to third on two passed balls and tallied on an error.

Kingston has a 2-0 record and will play Saugerties this afternoon.

Narvaez Risks 13-Bout Streak

NEW YORK (AP) — Frankie Narvaez risks his unbeaten 13-bout streak against the veteran Vicente Derado of Argentina in a 10-round fight tonight that will be nationally televised (ABC) from Sunnyside Garden.

The lightweight scrap at the neighborhood club across the East River in the borough of Queens shapes up as a tough one for the 22-year-old Narvaez from Caguas, P.R., who has not lost since Dec. 16, 1961. He outpointed Luis Molina in his last start and has an over-all record of 18-1-1 with three kayos to his credit.

Derado has knocked out 16 opponents in compiling a career mark of 39-11-12 in his eight years of fighting.

Four RR Bettors Win $41,532.29

Four lucky ticket holders collected $41,532.20 apiece Thursday night at Roosevelt Raceway on the twin double.

The payoff resulted from Gunner Hanover's victory in the ninth race, for a return of $55.-90.

Other winners who figured in the twin double and their returns were:

Rendezvous Truder, sixth race, $16.80; Direct Rainbow, seventh, $6.50; and Dilman, eighth, $13.10.

Highest twin of the year at Roosevelt was the $54,349.50 on March 14. The record for the Long Island track, and for harness racing, is $79,660.30 on Nov. 6 of last year.

In the $5,000 invitational pace, Sampson Knight continued his winning ways in beating Skeeter Brooke by a head.

Walter Welch drove the 5-year-old gelding to his third straight triumph in 2:04 1-5. The 9-5 favorite returned $5.70. Precious Scot was third.

At Buffalo Raceway, Tropical Way won the featured $1,000 pace by three-quarters of a length over Guy Sota.

The 3-year-old gelding, driven by Jack Bailey, paced the mile in 2:04 3-5 and paid $4.50, $2.90 third.

Klonowski Gets Winning Points In Final Seconds

By ED PALLADINO
Freeman Sports Staff

Joe Klonowski potted a field goal and foul shot in the final 15 seconds and Ray's Tackle Shop of Kingston scored the biggest upset in the 11-year history of the local cage tournament, 77-76, over the Pine Plains Bombardiers last night at the Municipal Auditorium.

The local hotshots, riding the crest with a solid team effort and sparkling individual performances on the part of Ron Miller and Joe Uhl, shocked the highly favored Bombardiers with a superior all-around effort.

Klonowski put the finishing touches on the victory cake. He snapped a 74-74 tie with a basket from inside and seconds later made a free throw. It mattered not that Nick Werkman hit for the last basket of the evening for the losers. This only made the final score closer.

Take Early Lead

Trounced by more than 20 points a week ago by this same club, the Tackle Shop moved to a quick advantage in the opening minutes and remained ahead almost the entire distance.

Just before the end of the third stanza, the Bombardiers forged in front, 62-61, and appeared to be applying the pressure on the Tackle Shop players, who had hustled from start to finish and appeared on the tired side.

Bill Telasky's basket moved the pre-tourney favorites three points ahead. That was their last gesture.

Uhl, who played shoulder to shoulder with Telasky from start to finish, hit from the side and then Miller scored from underneath after taking a pass from Chick Boice. This shoved the locals in front, 65-64.

Both sides stayed within two points of each other the rest of the way before Klonowski made his key points near the end.

Miller Top Scorer

Miller scored 21 points to pace the winners. Uhl and Boice finished with 19 each and Klonowski scored 15. Werkman rimmed 18 for the Bombardiers, and its not very often you'll see this Seton Hall ace score under 25. Telasky had 16, Tom Hannon 12 and Hank Whitney 10.

The clubs will be at it again Sunday at 8 and this one will decide the championship. Win or lose the Tackle Shop exploded the myth that this Pine Plains team is unbeatable. If there have been bigger upsets, we have yet to see them.

Patty Berg's 69 Is Near Record In Titleholders

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — "I drove pretty well for the old girl," said 46-year-old Patty Berg who took a two-stroke lead over young rivals into the second round of the 25th annual Titleholders Golf Tournament today.

Miss Berg was speaking of her three-under-par 69 in the first round Thursday that boosted her into contention for her eighth Titleholders championship. She also was only one stroke away from the single-round record of 68 which she set in 1955 en route to her tournament record of 291.

"I hope the 291 is broken this time," she said. "Every time a record is broken it shows that women golfers are making progress."

Miss Berg, of St. Andrews, Ill., said she drove well throughout the round.

"I was never in the rough at all," she added.

She took only 24 putts in making four birdies, one bogey and 13 pars over the 6,300-yard Augusta Country Club course.

The 69 put her two strokes ahead of Judy Kimball of Sioux City, Iowa, and Betsy Rawls of Spartanburg, S. C. Gloria Armstrong of Alameda, Calif. and Jo Ann Prentice of Birmingham, Ala. had par 72s.

Defending champion Marilynn Smith of Runaway Bay, Jamaica, was tied with Louise Suggs of Cincinnati at 73. Tournament favorite Mickey Wright of Dallas, Tex., was tied with six others at 74, five strokes off the pace.

Trinity Cagers Hear Thayer

Harry Thayer, general manager of Station WGHQ, was guest speaker at the Father and Son Sports Award dinner honoring members of the Trinity Methodist Church Junior basketball team.

A former business manager of the professional football Philadelphia Eagles and Los Angeles Dons, Thayer stressed the importance of teamwork in any sport. He related how the Eagles developed from a 2-game winner in 1942 to the National League champions four years later. This, he said, was an outstanding example of teamwork and building for the future.

A film, "Response to Challenge" concluded the program.

Also attending the dinner were: The Rev. Roy A. Hassel, pastor; Charles Shultis, lay reader; Harry Giles, assistant superintendent of the church school; as well as other members of the parish. Mrs. Richard Schabot was in charge of the dinner assisted by Mrs. John Palen, Mrs. F. W. Thompson Sr., Mrs. DeVall Dunbar, Mrs. Roy A. Hassel and Betty Lou Brodhead. Walter Elston was thanked for his cooperation.

Key Hits, Walks Enable Locals To Win 2nd Game

Taking advantage of walks and inserting a couple of key base hits at the right time, Kingston High completed a home-and-home sweep of Roosevelt, 5-3, yesterday at Dietz Stadium.

Coach Al Gruner used four hurlers and three of them didn't allow the Presidents a hit. Sophomore lefty Gene Rios went four innings, and though he was hampered by some faulty control, the fireballer didn't issue a run or hit.

Ken Heppner retired the visitors in the sixth. Vince Fisher was hit for a single, double and triple in the sixth before Brian Bach came in to retire the side and then preserve the victory with a hitless seventh frame.

Two walks, an error, passed ball and fielders choice gave the locals a second inning run off loser Pete Ferenz. A hit batter, stolen base, error and passed ball hiked the lead to 2-0 in the fourth.

In the fifth, two walks, a fielders choice and hits by Paul Gruner and Gary Johnson netted two runs more. They were the only hits collected by the winners but they came at an opportune time.

The final tally came in the sixth and again a walk led to the run. Bach was passed, went to third on two passed balls and tallied on an error.

Kingston has a 2-0 record and will play Saugerties this afternoon.

Narvaez Risks 13-Bout Streak

NEW YORK (AP) — Frankie Narvaez risks his unbeaten 13-bout streak against the veteran Vicente Derado of Argentina in a 10-round fight tonight that will be nationally televised (ABC) from Sunnyside Garden.

The lightweight scrap at the neighborhood club across the East River in the borough of Queens shapes up as a tough one for the 22-year-old Narvaez from Caguas, P.R., who has not lost since Dec. 16, 1961. He outpointed Luis Molina in his last start and has an over-all record of 18-1-1 with three kayos to his credit.

Derado has knocked out 16 opponents in compiling a career mark of 39-11-12 in his eight years of fighting.

Brownlee Wins

Rondout Tops Falls On 3 Hits

Rondout Valley Central parlayed three hits and a flock of errors into a 5-1 baseball victory over Fallsburgh Central Thursday at Rondout Valley.

Tom Brownlee, Gander pitcher, deserved to win in any event. He limited the Sullivan county nine to four hits, struck out 10 and walked only one. It was the second win in three starts for the Ganders, who are at Highland Monday.

Brownlee lost a shutout when Duke, Fallsburgh centerfielder and cleanup hitter, led off the second inning with a triple and scored on infield error. Duke also had a single.

A double by Blanchard, Bell's single, a base on balls to Schoonmaker and two fat errors accounted for four Rondout Valley runs off Joe Levine in the first inning. Levine yielded a single tally in the second then matched Brownlee in a scoreless performance the rest of the way.

7 Errors Hurt Locals' Chances In Opening Tilt

Ulster County Community College batters made their debut yesterday and were generous enough to give Dutchess six unearned runs while losing a 6-2 decision at Riverview Field in Poughkeepsie.

The locals, who have had only a few practice sessions, committed seven errors while the home side scored three runs in the first, two in the seventh and another in the eighth frame.

Wayne Johnson was the victim of the poor support. He hurled a strong game, allowing six hits while walking four and fanning eight.

Coach Al DiBernardo's nine scored in the first inning when Dave Horton singled, stole second and scored on Ken Horne's base knock.

A hit by Bill Reid and Johnson's booming triple to deep left field gave the locals their other run in the seventh.

The Senators lost shortstop Howard Budd for the rest of the year. He suffered a fractured ankle in a play at second base.

Fleischmanns Baseball Legend

By CHARLES J. TIANO
(Freeman Sports Editor)

The Mountain Athletic Base Ball Team as it was known when organized in 1894 in Fleischmanns was one of the earliest examples of a small town team that went "big time" by the simple expedient of gradually replacing home town "stars" with collegians and out of towners.

Colonials of the The Kingston 1920-era followed a similar pattern, although local worthies like Bud Culloton, Bill Schwab, Jack Robins and Matty Deegan survived the waves of high priced college and ex-major league talent that found its way to Kingston under the aegis of Harry Schirick and Lou Brown.

When the Mountain Athletic team recruited the Fleischmanns brothers—Max and Julius—they had it made. Destined to become millionaires and patrons of the arts, the Fleischmanns brothers acquired their bundle through the manufacture of yeast and the dispensation of enormous quantities of gin. They also refused to stand pat with the 1894 array.

Huggins and Wagner

In due time such ancient major league names as Hans Wagner, the immortal Flying Dutchman of the Pittsburgh Pirates; Miller Huggins, who managed the Babe Ruth-Lou Gehrig Yankees; Andy Coakley, famed Columbia University baseball coach; Doc White of the Cubs and a host of other lesser known big league players found their way to Fleischmanns. The setting was most conductive to the itinerant summer ball player. The pay was good, there was good music and food, beautiful women and a idyllic summer colony atmosphere carefully nutured by the brothers Fleischmanns.

C. G. Whittaker, who conducts a piano service at 604 Otis Street in Kingston, is the son of an original member of the Fleischmanns array. He recently dug up an old letter in which the late Arthur S. Reynolds went into some detail about the origins and development of the country team. It seems the Fleischmanns boys were shallacked 3 straight times. On the return from Oneonta, scene of the last disaster, Reynolds was unloading his woes on Julius Fleischmanns, who didn't appear too disturbed by the unhappy events.

"Well, we're getting a kick out of it," said Fleischmanns, "and we can't help it."

"But let's get some better players," Reynolds pleaded.

"You get the players and I'll foot the bill," Fleischmanns responded.

That was all the encouragement Reynolds needed. Early the next morning he hit the rugged trails to Kingston and corralled four local stars of the period—Pete Cragin, Eddie Winters, Gran Whittaker and Windy Palen.

Story Is Repeated

In due time the refurbished team was beating local teams so badly it couldn't get bookings. The mountain boys decided to book powerful out of town teams and soon were losing more games than they were winning. The earlier vignette was repeated. Reynolds again approached Fleischmanns and told the owner: "I guess we'll have to get some new players." "Where?", asked Fleischmanns.

Don't worry about that," Reynolds replied, "I'll start looking tomorrow morning."

Reynolds headed for New York city and soon returned with Miller Huggins, Andy Coakley, just suspended by the White Sox; Bill Doone, late of the Phillies. Doc White of the Cubs. Hans Wagner and others followed. It wasn't too long before the original crew dropped out of sight.

Gran Whittaker, however, left a legacy behind him. He was the first local player to hit a home run after Julius Fleischmanns started putting up $10 prizes for round trippers.

Played Big Leaguers

The Mountain Boys, considerably more potent and sophisticated than the original gang, started roaming far and wide. On a trip to the middle west, they defeated the Cincinnati Red Stockings in Cincinnati, where Julius later became mayor. They entertained the Boston Braves at Fleischmanns and split a doubleheader.

This fabulous team was disbanded in 1901.

Sunday at Oehler's

Poughkeepsie B-W Next for Sport Club

Their 49-game winning streak halted last Sunday at Schenectady, the Kingston Sport Club booters try to regain their winning ways Sunday against the Poughkeepsie Blue and Whites at Oehler's Mountain Lodge field.

Th Central New York Soccer Association contest is scheduled at 2:30 p .m. and will be preceded by a Junior preliminary contest at 1 p. m.

Manager Bob Graves' squad is still in good shape in the league standings but the setback at Schenectady will make the locals a tougher club to handle in the future. It would not be surprising if they exploded their wrath against the Poughkeepsie squad.

Peter Fuchs, who missed the last two starts because of a knee injury, is fit and ready to return to the lineup. The club has also acquired Johnny Reinhardt, who played with the team three years ago.

Meanwhile, it was announced that seven members of the Sport Club varsity have been picked for the association all-star squad which meets the Long Island All Stars on May 17 at Randalls Island. In another game, the Hamburg SV squad meets another all-star team.

Named from the Kingston roster were Lee Roberts, George Vizvary, Alex Dirks, Tony Fitzharris and Bill Newmerchynsky. Carlos Bustamente and Frank Luzzi were designated as reserves.

Brownlee Wins

Rondout Tops Falls On 3 Hits

Rondout Valley Central parlayed three hits and a flock of errors into a 5-1 baseball victory over Fallsburgh Central Thursday at Rondout Valley.

Tom Brownlee, Gander pitcher, deserved to win in any event. He limited the Sullivan county nine to four hits, struck out 10 and walked only one. It was the second win in three starts for the Ganders, who are at Highland Monday.

Brownlee lost a shutout when Duke, Fallsburgh centerfielder and cleanup hitter, led off the second inning with a triple and scored on infield error. Duke also had a single.

A double by Blanchard, Bell's single, a base on balls to Schoonmaker and two fat errors accounted for four Rondout Valley runs off Joe Levine in the first inning. Levine yielded a single tally in the second then matched Brownlee in a scoreless performance the rest of the way.

7 Errors Hurt Locals' Chances In Opening Tilt

Ulster County Community College batters made their debut yesterday and were generous enough to give Dutchess six unearned runs while losing a 6-2 decision at Riverview Field in Poughkeepsie.

The locals, who have had only a few practice sessions, committed seven errors while the home side scored three runs in the first, two in the seventh and another in the eighth frame.

Wayne Johnson was the victim of the poor support. He hurled a strong game, allowing six hits while walking four and fanning eight.

A hit by Bill Reid and Johnson's booming triple to deep left field gave the locals their other run in the seventh.

The Senators lost shortstop Howard Budd for the rest of the year. He suffered a fractured ankle in a play at second base.

Sprinklers Lose Title by 1 Game

After winning 11 straight games and moving into a temporary tie for first place, Mid-Hudson Auto Sprinklers lost the final game to Klein's Refrigeration to finish second in the Mardi Bob All-Star League.

Needing to sweep Klein's to win the title, the locals socked 989 and 954 to win the first two games. However, the champs had a 941 effort against only 862 to close out in successful fashion.

Dick Howard shot 607 for the locals.

'My Best Game,' Johnson Says After No-Hit Loss

"So I made history. Heckuva way to get into the books, isn't it?"

It was the first no-hit game of the young major league season and the second in the Colts' brief three-year history. But it was even more than that.

Johnson is the first pitcher ever to hurl a no-hitter and lose in a nine-inning game and the first ever to lose a game without giving the opposing team a hit. Other pitchers have gone through nine hitless innings but lost in extra innings after allowing hits.

Johnson, a knuckleball specialist, was well aware of the no-hitter during the game. After the seventh inning, he asked teammate Don Nottebart, "How's a guy supposed to feel, Notty? What do you do?"

"What else can I do?" he asked, smiling. "I pitched the best game of my life. I can't feel bad because I lost it. Actually, I feel worse for the guys on the club. I guess that sounds funny, but it's true."

Johnson, who already had won two games this season, blamed himself for the defeat. His wild throw on Pete Rose's bunt with one out in the ninth put Rose on second, and he reached third on an infield out. Then Vada Pinson hit a routine grounder to Nellie Fox. The veteran second baseman booted the ball, allowing Rose to score.

McBride Bows, Hits 4 Batters

By MIKE RATHET

Baseball's department of unique statistics has had its first busy day of the season.

Some three hours after Houston's Ken Johnson earned a place in the record book by losing a no-hitter to Cincinnati 1-0 Thursday night, Ken McBride of the Los Angeles Angels entered the sweepstakes.

McBride, who previously had hit two batters with pitches, stood out on the mound in the ninth inning and hit two more, forcing in Cleveland's winning run in a 3-2 victory and equaling an American League record for most hit batters in one game.

McBride got into the ninth-inning jam on singles by Fred Whitfield and Tito Francona, who collected the 1,000th hit of his major league career earlier in the game. McBride then hit Johnny Romano and Woody Held in succession, forcing in the tie-breaking run.

Barber pulled a muscle under his left shoulder blade in the pre-game warmup, was tagged for two runs in the first inning and then forced to leave. There was no word on how long Barber would be sidelined.

Only one other game was scheduled in the AL. In that Bill Skowron drove in the winning run with a single in the eighth inning as Washington edged Minnesota 5-4.

Toronto Extends Hockey Playoff To Seven Games

DETROIT (AP)—The Detroit Red Wings, accustomed to coming from behind and battling to win important games, have reached that point again.

Toronto extended the Stanley Cup hockey playoff finals to the limit with a 4-3 victory Thursday night on Bob Baun's goal at 1:43 of an overtime session. A Detroit victory would have given the Red Wings the Stanley Cup.

It was ironic that Baun should score the winning marker, a shot that deflected off the long end of defenseman Bill Gadsby's stick and past the surprised Terry Sawchuk. It was Toronto's first shot of the overtime.

Rochester Names Smith Grid Coach

Sprinklers Lose Title by 1 Game

After winning 11 straight games and moving into a temporary tie for first place, Mid-Hudson Auto Sprinklers lost the final game to Klein's Refrigeration to finish second in the Mardi Bob All-Star League.

Needing to sweep Klein's to win the title, the locals socked 989 and 954 to win the first two games. However, the champs had a 941 effort against only 862 to close out in successful fashion.

Mid-Hudson finished second, thanks to that 11-1 record in the final four weeks.

'My Best Game,' Johnson Says After No-Hit Loss

"So I made history. Heckuva way to get into the books, isn't it?"

Houston pitcher Ken Johnson had just pitched a unique no-hit game against his former Cincinnati teammates Thursday night and lost 1-0 on two errors in the ninth inning, one of them his.

It was the first no-hit game of the young major league season and the second in the Colts' brief three-year history. But it was even more than that.

Johnson is the first pitcher ever to hurl a no-hitter and lose in a nine-inning game and the first ever to lose a game without giving the opposing team a hit. Other pitchers have gone through nine hitless innings but lost in extra innings after allowing hits.

Johnson, a knuckleball specialist, was well aware of the no-hitter during the game. After the seventh inning, he asked teammate Don Nottebart, "How's a guy supposed to feel, Notty? What do you do?"

Nottebart, who hurled Houston's first no-hit game last May 17 against Philadelphia, replied: "Stay loose and keep going."

After he had concluded his bizarre performance, Johnson scorned sympathy.

"What else can I do?" he asked, smiling. "I pitched the best game of my life. I can't feel bad because I lost it. Actually, I feel worse for the guys on the club. I guess that sounds funny, but it's true."

Johnson, who already had won two games this season, blamed himself for the defeat. His wild throw on Pete Rose's bunt with one out in the ninth put Rose on second, and he reached third on an infield out. Then Vada Pinson hit a routine grounder to Nellie Fox. The veteran second baseman booted the ball, allowing Rose to score.

McBride Bows, Hits 4 Batters

By MIKE RATHET

Baseball's department of unique statistics has had its first busy day of the season.

Some three hours after Houston's Ken Johnson earned a place in the record book by losing a no-hitter to Cincinnati 1-0 Thursday night, Ken McBride of the Los Angeles Angels entered the sweepstakes.

McBride, who previously had hit two batters with pitches, stood out on the mound in the ninth inning and hit two more, forcing in Cleveland's winning run in a 3-2 victory and equaling an American League record for most hit batters in one game.

McBride got into the ninth-inning jam on singles by Fred Whitfield and Tito Francona, who collected the 1,000th hit of his major league career earlier in the game. McBride then hit Johnny Romano and Woody Held in succession, forcing in the tie-breaking run.

In the opener, the Orioles lost the services of Steve Barber, the only Baltimore 20-game winner since the club rejoined the American League 10 years ago.

Barber pulled a muscle under his left shoulder blade in the pre-game warmup, was tagged for two runs in the first inning and then forced to leave. There was no word on how long Barber would be sidelined.

Only one other game was scheduled in the AL. In that Bill Skowron drove in the winning run with a single in the eighth inning as Washington edged Minnesota 5-4.

Toronto Extends Hockey Playoff To Seven Games

DETROIT (AP)—The Detroit Red Wings, accustomed to coming from behind and battling to win important games, have reached that point again.

Toronto extended the Stanley Cup hockey playoff finals to the limit with a 4-3 victory Thursday night on Bob Baun's goal at 1:43 of an overtime session. A Detroit victory would have given the Red Wings the Stanley Cup.

It was ironic that Baun should score the winning marker, a shot that deflected off the long end of defenseman Bill Gadsby's stick and past the surprised Terry Sawchuk. It was Toronto's first shot of the overtime.

Rochester Names Smith Grid Coach

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Donald C. Smith, who served as interim football coach at the University of Rochester last season, today was appointed head coach.

Smith, 34, succeeds Paul E. Bitgood, whom he spelled last fall after Bitgood suffered a heart attack. Bitgood, now recovered, directs Rochester intramural and physical education programs.

A Greene County man was injured Thursday when a car he was driving in an alleged drag race on West Road, Town of Greenville, crashed into a tree, according to Leeds State Police.

Gerald Sutton, 26, of Greenville, was admitted at Greene County Memorial Hospital in fair condition. He reportedly suffered fractured ribs, lacerations and contusions.

Trooper C. A. Svenson of Leeds, said Sutton was racing with another car about a half mile east of Route 32 and attempted to pass the other vehicle. The other driver slammed on his brakes forcing Sutton into a ditch, where it hit a tree, then careened across West Road and crashed into another tree before it overturned.

Rube Goldberg Writes Finis to Cartoonist Career

NEW YORK (AP) — Rube Goldberg draws his last cartoon today. He's 81 now and thinks it's time to start a new career.

"I didn't want to wait until I was dead to stop cartooning, or until someone didn't want me any more," said Goldberg, who will devote full time to being a sculptor.

His last cartoon for the New York Journal-American, and 43 other newspapers, will end a 59-year career.

Goldberg's first job as a cartoonist was with the Chronicle in his native San Francisco. About 10 years later, by 1916, he was in New York earning $100,000 a year as the author of "Boob McNutt" and "Mike and Ike—They Look Alike."

His comic strips, featuring weird inventions, were enjoyed by millions.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Nepotism? I'm crazy about it," said Groucho Marx with his usual studied irreverence. "Too bad I'm getting too old for it."

Irreverence aside, the acidic comedian seems to be doing all right by his family these days. Tonight his lovely wife Eden joins him on the Bob Hope Show in "Time for Elizabeth," a play written by Groucho and Norman Krasna.

Recently he appeared on the Steve Allen Show to introduce a new folk music act composed of his grandchildren. "But that wasn't nepotism," he declared. "Nepotism is when your relatives have no talent."

What of various other Marxes? Daughter Melinda is nearing 18 and making sounds of wanting to be an actress. "I never suggested it to her," said Groucho, "and that's the surest way to make her want to do it."

Son Arthur is co-authoring a new television series, and brothers Gummo and Zeppo are involved in orange growing. And Harpo?

"He told me seven years ago he was retiring and he works harder than I do," said Groucho. "Right now he's touring the Northwest making appearances for United Jewish Welfare. I didn't even know he was Jewish."

With his family so actively employed, you'd think that Groucho might enjoy a leisurely life. Such is not the case. He continues his frequent television appearances—last week he did two of Carl Reiner's "Celebrity Game" shows in one night — and he wouldn't be adverse to taking on another series like his long-running "You Bet Your Life." He is considering two or three opportunities to do so.

According to a report of Troopers G. W. Zappolo and Robert Whalen, Mason was driving south on Route 9W south of Port Ewen at about 1:15 a. m. today when his car hit a guard rail on the east side of the highway and veered across the pavement into a field.

Troopers said Mason received lacerations of the chin and lip. He was treated at Vassar Hospital, Poughkeepsie, and released.

Kiwanians Hear Facts On Junior Achievement

The possibility of establishing the Junior Achievement program in Kingston was projected Thursday to the Kingston Kiwanis Club by John Spencer, Eastern Regional Representative of the National Junior Achievement movement.

With headquarters in West Hartford, Conn., Spencer represents the program in 13 states and three provinces of Canada. He used the city of Rome, N. Y., as a comparison to Kingston.

Educational Program

Junior Achievement is an educational program in which young people, 15 to 19, organized and run their own small scale business enterprises. Meeting one night a week during the school year, some 70,000 youngsters are learning about business this year by running more than 4,000 businesses of their own. They are guided and counselled by adult advisors drawn from business and industry. They capitalize their business by selling capital stock, at 50 cents a share, to parents, friends, neighbors, teachers, and the general public. For most of these shareholders it is their first experience in stock ownership. Approximately 300,000 persons bought more than 750,000 shares of stock.

Three Essentials

There are three essentials for the establishment of Junior Achievement program in a community, according to the speaker. These are leadership, provided by a representative group, sponsorship, usually by business organizations, and finances, obtained through the selling of stock and the establishment of a budget. Spencer indicated that in the city of Rome, the budget was $4,800 which provided for from five to eight Junior Achievement companies with 20 to 25 youngsters in each company.

A board of directors was essential to launch the program and this could come about through the organization of a group of 15 to 20 community leaders. Spencer said that once this was accomplished, Junior Achievements would come in with speakers and the prepared program.

Another factor noted in a Junior Achievement Company was the process of liquidation of the company. In May, the companies liquidate their assets, pay all bills and close out the enterprise, retiring the capital stock and paying a liquidating dividend if operations have been profitable. It was pointed out that between 75 and 80 per cent of all Junior Achievment companies do show a profit—those that do not, pro-rate assets among shareholders.

The speaker suggested that the Kiwanis Club or some of its members might be interested in the project, which he emphasized was developed by local leaders and directed by local boards of directors.

Conversion

Hanford Center, looking to the possible conversion and operation of one of the three plutonium - producing reactors being discontinued there.

Some utility groups have expressed interest informally in this reactor, an AEC spokesman said, but none has yet committed itself to undertake a feasibility study.

The AEC is particularly anxious to encourage private ventures at Hanford, because curtailment of AEC activities there is expected to reduce employment in the surrounding tricity area of Richland, Pasco and Kennewick, Wash.

Bridge Travel Is

The authority listed operating expenses of 275,220, compared to $208,107 in 1963, and a net revenue, before bond service of $481,085 compared to $278,572 in 1963.

Town of Hurley Hearing Set on Pig Farm Law

A public hearing on the proposal to adopt an ordinance to regulate and license pig farms in the township will be held at a special Town Board meeting Monday at 7:30 p. m. at Hurley Firehouse.

Members of the Town Board will hear arguments for and against adoption of the ordinance at that time.

Williams Found Guilty of Drug Charges by Jury

Alfonso Williams, 35, of 49 Meadow Street, was found guilty late Thursday afternoon of sale and illegal possession of a narcotic drug. He will be sentenced by County Judge Raymond J. Mino at 10 a. m. May 11.

The jury deliberated four hours before returning the guilty verdict. It is alleged Williams sold two cigarettes containing cannabis to Winston Riddick last Sept. 15 at the Commanche Club on Canal Street. Riddick, under indictment for violation of the narcotics law, was the principal witness along with two Kingston police officers who witnessed the sale from a building across the street from the club.

It was alleged Riddick, with the police officers, went to the scene after being searched. He went to the club where it is alleged he sold two cigarettes and received $2 from Williams. The sale of narcotics is a felony and the possession charge is a misdemeanor violation.

Jury Is Split

Vincent G. Connelly appeared for defendant by assignment and The People were represented by Assistant District Attorney Francis Vogt.

A prior trial on violation of the narcotics law involving Terry Villa resulted in a "hung" jury when the jurors were unable to agree. She was charged with sale of marajuana cigarettes to Riddick at a room over a Broadway restaurant. Hubert Richter appeared for defendant.

Can't Agree on Sale

In another narcotics violation case in which Warren Dawson was charged with illegal sale and possession, a jury returned a verdict of guilty to illegal possession but was unable to agree on the sale charge.

The indictments for narcotics laws violations were handed down by a grand jury after months of investigation into alleged narcotic law violations in the city. They were conducted by the local police and the State narcotics agency.

Will Re-Try McKnight

Following the submission of the Williams case to the jury Thursday afternoon selection of a jury to re-try the James McKnight grand larceny and burglary charge was begun.

McKnight, also known as Buster Carney, Saugerties, is charged with entering the Maranda, Inc., dress shop in Saugerties on February 15, 1963, and taking a $1,700 payroll. The jury which heard the case earlier this month was unable to agree and case was moved for re-trial.

A Poughkeepsie man, Marton Gross, was recently elected president of the New York State Chapter of the American Collectors Association.

Gross is owner and manager of the Dutchess Bureau of Medical Economics of 2 Catherine Street, Poughkeepsie. In addition to Dutchess County, his firm also services Orange and Ulster Counties. Gross is a long time member of the Poughkeepsie Area Chamber of Commerce.

Bhutan Clash Was Dangerously Near Informants Say

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — India and Communist China were dangerously close to a clash over Bhutan earlier this month, it was learned today, and both nations reportedly moved troops to jump off positions.

Informed sources said both sides still appear ready to counter—with troops if necessary—any attempt by the other to take advantage of the internal political turmoil in the Himalayan buffer state between northeast India and Tibet.

However, Indian aerial reconnaissance indicates the Chinese have not moved across the Tibet-Bhutan border, informants said, and Indian troops have stood fast.

The mountain passes leading south out of Bhutan are gateways to eastern India, and Indian military men say they are essential to India's defense. For the same reason, Communist China is anxious to control the passes.

Confrontation over Bhutan, possibly the most dangerous since the China-India border war of 1962, began in earnest with the assassination on April 5 of Bhutanese Premier Jigme Dorji.

Ulster Library Eyes Fall Date For New Building

Leon Karpel, director of the Mid-Hudson Library System, met recently with the Building committee of the Town of Ulster Library Association.

The committee, consisting of Ted Musialkiewicz, William H. Williams, Robert Ohlson and Bruce Burgher, invited Karpel to review plans for the proposed new library to be built near the Chambers School.

Karpel discussed building and financial plans with the committee and offered considerable constructive advice. As a result of this meeting the committee feels certain that they will be able to achieve a fall opening for the new library.

PSC Okays New Push-Phone Rates

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The new pushbutton telephones will cost residential subscribers $1.90 a month more than the conventional dial models, the Public Service Commission said today.

It announced it had approved a New York Telephone Co. request for higher rates for the so-called "touch - tone" telephones for customers who request them when they become available.

The new telephones are operated by pushbuttons on the front of the telephone, in place of the dial.

The new rate will be $2.75 a month more for each business line.

The telephone company told the PSC that it planned to spend $4 million in the next two years for the special equipment needed for the pushbutton system.

The first installations had been made at the World's Fair.

Next year, the schedule calls for introduction of the pushbutton service in remaining New York City suburbs and 20 Upstate areas, including Albany, Troy, Rome, Ithaca and Batavia.

Cushing Says He Is Victim of Hoax

BELMONT, Mass. (AP) — Richard Cardinal Cushing, Roman Catholic archbishop of Boston, says many statements he made about the John Birch Society on Monday night were unjustified.

The cardinal's office confirmed today that he sent a letter to Thomas J. Davis of Stamford, Conn., a regional Birch Society official, in which he said he was the victim of a hoax when he broadcast a statement repudiating the society and its founder, Robert Welch, and retracting a 1960 endorsement.

The letter by the cardinal, incorporated in a statement from Welch, said that "because of my own dedication to the fight against the atheistic Communist conspiracy, I certainly do not want to do any harm to fellow battlers in the same cause."

The cardinal said he made his Monday statements "conditional on the accuracy of the information I had received. Under the circumstances I now feel that many of them were unjustified."

Are Your Series H Bonds Eligible for Extension?

ROGER E. SPEAR

Q) "Will you please let me know about Series H savings bonds after maturity? Do we have to cash them in and purchase a new issue, or do they automatically become extended? If I have to cash in and repurchase, how much would a $500 bond start paying?" L.M.

A) I am pleased to tell you that all Series H bonds with issue dates from June 1952 to Jan. 1957 have been granted the privilege of automatic extension for 10 years from the date of maturity.

During the extension period these bonds pay a straight 3¾ per cent annually. On a $500 bond, this means that you would receive — in the first year of extension and each year thereafter to maturity — $18.70 annually, with half of this sum sent to you by the Treasury every six months.

You apparently have an H bond maturing, and I advise you strongly to accept the automatic extension privilege.

Q) "I depend on my stcoks for income. Would you please tell me whether I should hold or sell New England Electric System; El Paso Natural Gas; New York, Chicago and St. Louis R.R.? I am most deeply concerned about New England Electric System." A.G.

A) I don't believe that you need to be deeply concerned about any of your holdings.

New England Electric System has been ordered by the S.E.C. to divest itself of its eight gas utility companies, but these accounted for only 10 per cent of income in 1962. I believe the dividend is safe, but the yield is only 4.2 per cent. If you are deeply concerned, I would switch into Pacific Lighting, selling on a 4.4 per cent basis.

I would exchange El Paso for United Gas Corp. which yields a little less but has a much wider dividend coverage.

Will Draw Up Rail Pact Monday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Railroad management and union negotiators will meet with federal mediators at the Labor Department Monday to start writing a detailed contract which will formally end one of the nation's longest and most complex labor disputes.

Both sides planned a weekend recess after nearly two weeks of intensive White House talks which ended in an agreement late Wednesday, averting a nationwide strike which had been scheduled for a minute after midnight tonight.

In a White House ceremony Thursday, President Johnson congratulated the negotiators and urged both sides to "get back to the railroads and go to work" so both labor and management can prosper.

It will take about a week to draw up the contract, and no difficulties are expected. Then it will take another 10 days or so for the unions to vote their expected ratification of the contract involving wages, jobs and working conditions.

Both sides have expressed satisfaction with the pact which roughly amounts to a trade involving union financial gains for management's right to eliminate certain jobs.

Saugerties Board Cancels Meeting

The special meeting of Saugerties Village Board scheduled for tonight has been cancelled and will be rescheduled at a later date.

The meeting was called earlier this week for the purpose of appointing a village clerk to fill the vacancy created by the failure of the board to reappoint Ernest Ackert at the April 6 organizational meeting.

Several applicants have been interviewed Thursday. However the trustees are of the opinion that the appointment should be delayed until additional candidates for the post are interviewed.

The committee said the competitive abuses it considered most serious were sale of milk at unreasonably low prices and unwarranted differences in prices charged for milk to customers in the same areas or in different areas.

The committee said that, in establishing regulatory authority against destructive competition, great care had to be taken to avoid interfering with desirable forms of competition.

"Moreover," the report added, "experience has shown such a program usually involves great difficulties of enforcement."

But the committee said the proposed ban on discriminatory pricing should not be interpreted "as requiring price uniformity without regard to differences in quality of product, quantities sold, services performed or of other conditions which give rise to significant differences in cost."

Kiwanians Hear Facts On Junior Achievement

The possibility of establishing the Junior Achievement program in Kingston was projected Thursday to the Kingston Kiwanis Club by John Spencer, Eastern Regional Representative of the National Junior Achievement movement.

With headquarters in West Hartford, Conn., Spencer represents the program in 13 states and three provinces of Canada. He used the city of Rome, N. Y., as a comparison to Kingston.

Educational Program

Junior Achievement is an educational program in which young people, 15 to 19, organized and run their own small scale business enterprises. Meeting one night a week during the school year, some 70,000 youngsters are learning about business this year by running more than 4,000 businesses of their own. They are guided and counselled by adult advisors drawn from business and industry. They capitalize their business by selling capital stock, at 50 cents a share, to parents, friends, neighbors, teachers, and the general public. For most of these shareholders it is their first experience in stock ownership. Approximately 300,000 persons bought more than 750,000 shares of stock.

Three Essentials

There are three essentials for the establishment of Junior Achievement program in a community, according to the speaker. These are leadership, provided by a representative group, sponsorship, usually by business organizations, and finances, obtained through the selling of stock and the establishment of a budget. Spencer indicated that in the city of Rome, the budget was $4,800 which provided for from five to eight Junior Achievement companies with 20 to 25 youngsters in each company.

A board of directors was essential to launch the program and this could come about through the organization of a group of 15 to 20 community leaders. Spencer said that once this was accomplished, Junior Achievements would come in with speakers and the prepared program.

Another factor noted in a Junior Achievement Company was the process of liquidation of the company. In May, the companies liquidate their assets, pay all bills and close out the enterprise, retiring the capital stock and paying a liquidating dividend if operations have been profitable. It was pointed out that between 75 and 80 per cent of all Junior Achievment companies do show a profit—those that do not, pro-rate assets among shareholders.

The speaker suggested that the Kiwanis Club or some of its members might be interested in the project, which he emphasized was developed by local leaders and directed by local boards of directors.

Conversion

Hanford Center, looking to the possible conversion and operation of one of the three plutonium - producing reactors being discontinued there.

Some utility groups have expressed interest informally in this reactor, an AEC spokesman said, but none has yet committed itself to undertake a feasibility study.

The AEC is particularly anxious to encourage private ventures at Hanford, because curtailment of AEC activities there is expected to reduce employment in the surrounding tricity area of Richland, Pasco and Kennewick, Wash.

Bridge Travel Is

showed a total of 411,530 vehicles. Totals for the Bear Mountain were 317,440 and 301,906, a percentage gain of 5.15.

The authority listed operating expenses of 275,220, compared to $208,107 in 1963, and a net revenue, before bond service of $481,085 compared to $278,572 in 1963.

Williams Found Guilty of Drug Charges by Jury

Alfonso Williams, 35, of 49 Meadow Street, was found guilty late Thursday afternoon of sale and illegal possession of a narcotic drug. He will be sentenced by County Judge Raymond J. Mino at 10 a. m. May 11.

The jury deliberated four hours before returning the guilty verdict. It is alleged Williams sold two cigarettes containing cannabis to Winston Riddick last Sept. 15 at the Commanche Club on Canal Street. Riddick, under indictment for violation of the narcotics law, was the principal witness along with two Kingston police officers who witnessed the sale from a building across the street from the club.

It was alleged Riddick, with the police officers, went to the scene after being searched. He went to the club where it is alleged he sold two cigarettes and received $2 from Williams. The sale of narcotics is a felony and the possession charge is a misdemeanor violation.

Jury Is Split

Vincent G. Connelly appeared for defendant by assignment and The People were represented by Assistant District Attorney Francis Vogt.

"A prior trial on violation of the narcotics law involving Terry Villa resulted in a "hung" jury when the jurors were unable to agree. She was charged with sale of marajuana cigarettes to Riddick at a room over a Broadway restaurant. Hubert Richter appeared for defendant.

Can't Agree on Sale

In another narcotics violation case in which Warren Dawson was charged with illegal sale and possession, a jury returned a verdict of guilty to illegal possession but was unable to agree on the sale charge.

The indictments for narcotics laws violations were handed down by a grand jury after months of investigation into alleged narcotic law violations in the city. They were conducted by the local police and the State narcotics agency.

Will Re-Try McKnight

McKnight, also known as Buster Carney, Saugerties, is charged with entering the Maranda, Inc., dress shop in Saugerties on February 15, 1963, and taking a $1,700 payroll. The jury which heard the case earlier this month was unable to agree and case was moved for re-trial.

Bhutan Clash Was Dangerously Near Informants Say

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — India and Communist China were dangerously close to a clash over Bhutan earlier this month, it was learned today, and both nations reportedly moved troops to jump off positions.

Informed sources said both sides still appear ready to counter—with troops if necessary—any attempt by the other to take advantage of the internal political turmoil in the Himalayan buffer state between northeast India and Tibet.

However, Indian aerial reconnaissance indicates the Chinese have not moved across the Tibet-Bhutan border, informants said, and Indian troops have stood fast.

The mountain passes leading south out of Bhutan are gateways to eastern India, and Indian military men say they are essential to India's defense. For the same reason, Communist China is anxious to control the passes.

Confrontation over Bhutan, possibly the most dangerous since the China-India border war of 1962, began in earnest with the assassination on April 5 of Bhutanese Premier Jigme Dorji.

Karpel discussed building and financial plans with the committee and offered considerable constructive advice. As a result of this meeting the committee feels certain that they will be able to achieve a fall opening for the new library.

PSC Okays New Push-Phone Rates

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The new pushbutton telephones will cost residential subscribers $1.90 a month more than the conventional dial models, the Public Service Commission said today.

It announced it had approved a New York Telephone Co. request for higher rates for the so-called "touch - tone" telephones for customers who request them when they become available.

The new telephones are operated by pushbuttons on the front of the telephone, in place of the dial.

The new rate will be $2.75 a month more for each business line.

The telephone company told the PSC that it planned to spend $4 million in the next two years for the special equipment needed for the pushbutton system.

The first installations had been made at the World's Fair.

Next year, the schedule calls for introduction of the pushbutton service in remaining New York City suburbs and 20 Upstate areas, including Albany, Troy, Rome, Ithaca and Batavia.

Cushing Says He Is Victim of Hoax

BELMONT, Mass. (AP) — Richard Cardinal Cushing, Roman Catholic archbishop of Boston, says many statements he made about the John Birch Society on Monday night were unjustified.

The cardinal's office confirmed today that he sent a letter to Thomas J. Davis of Stamford, Conn., a regional Birch Society official, in which he said he was the victim of a hoax when he broadcast a statement repudiating the society and its founder, Robert Welch, and retracting a 1960 endorsement.

The letter by the cardinal, incorporated in a statement from Welch, said that "because of my own dedication to the fight against the atheistic Communist conspiracy, I certainly do not want to do any harm to fellow battlers in the same cause."

The cardinal said he made his Monday statements "conditional on the accuracy of the information I had received. Under the circumstances I now feel that many of them were unjustified."

Are Your Series H Bonds Eligible for Extension?

ROGER E. SPEAR

Q) "Will you please let me know about Series H savings bonds after maturity? Do we have to cash them in and purchase a new issue, or do they automatically become extended? If I have to cash in and repurchase, how much would a $500 bond start paying?" L.M.

A) I am pleased to tell you that all Series H bonds with issue dates from June 1952 to Jan. 1957 have been granted the privilege of automatic extension for 10 years from the date of maturity.

During the extension period these bonds pay a straight 3¾ per cent annually. On a $500 bond, this means that you would receive — in the first year of extension and each year thereafter to maturity — $18.70 annually, with half of this sum sent to you by the Treasury every six months.

You apparently have an H bond maturing, and I advise you strongly to accept the automatic extension privilege.

Q) "I depend on my stcoks for income. Would you please tell me whether I should hold or sell New England Electric System; El Paso Natural Gas; New York, Chicago and St. Louis R.R.? I am most deeply concerned about New England Electric System." A.G.

A) I don't believe that you need to be deeply concerned about any of your holdings.

New England Electric System has been ordered by the S.E.C. to divest itself of its eight gas utility companies, but these accounted for only 10 per cent of income in 1962. I believe the dividend is safe, but the yield is only 4.2 per cent. If you are deeply concerned, I would switch into Pacific Lighting, selling on a 4.4 per cent basis.

I would exchange El Paso for United Gas Corp. which yields a little less but has a much wider dividend coverage.

Will Draw Up Rail Pact Monday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Railroad management and union negotiators will meet with federal mediators at the Labor Department Monday to start writing a detailed contract which will formally end one of the nation's longest and most complex labor disputes.

Both sides planned a weekend recess after nearly two weeks of intensive White House talks which ended in an agreement late Wednesday, averting a nationwide strike which had been scheduled for a minute after midnight tonight.

In a White House ceremony Thursday, President Johnson congratulated the negotiators and urged both sides to "get back to the railroads and go to work" so both labor and management can prosper.

It will take about a week to draw up the contract, and no difficulties are expected. Then it will take another 10 days or so for the unions to vote their expected ratification of the contract involving wages, jobs and working conditions.

Both sides have expressed satisfaction with the pact which roughly amounts to a trade involving union financial gains for management's right to eliminate certain jobs.

Saugerties Board Cancels Meeting

The special meeting of Saugerties Village Board scheduled for tonight has been cancelled and will be rescheduled at a later date.

The meeting was called earlier this week for the purpose of appointing a village clerk to fill the vacancy created by the failure of the board to reappoint Ernest Ackert at the April 6 organizational meeting.

Several applicants have been interviewed Thursday. However the trustees are of the opinion that the appointment should be delayed until additional candidates for the post are interviewed.

improved methods of distribution.

The committee said the competitive abuses it considered most serious were sale of milk at unreasonably low prices and unwarranted differences in prices charged for milk to customers in the same areas or in different areas.

The committee said that, in establishing regulatory authority against destructive competition, great care had to be taken to avoid interfering with desirable forms of competition.

"Moreover," the report added, "experience has shown such a program usually involves great difficulties of enforcement."

But the committee said the proposed ban on discriminatory pricing should not be interpreted "as requiring price uniformity without regard to differences in quality of product, quantities sold, services performed or of other conditions which give rise to significant differences in cost."

Vote on $2,661,435 Budget Is Scheduled May 6 in Onteora

Qualified voters of the Onteora Central Schools District will vote on a gross budget of $2,661,435 for the 1954-65 school year at the annual election on Wednesday, May 6, from 2 p. m. to 9 p. m. in the four poll centers in the school district.

The gross budget is up $426,435 over the the 1963-64 budget. Net figure to be raised by taxation is $1,768,763, an increase of $308,604 over last year.

To date four candidates have filed nominating petitions for the Board of Education. They include Sherman Masten and James Hogan of West Hurley; Herbert Epstein of Phoenicia and Richard O. Langham of Woodstock.

The four poll centers in the district are located at the Shandaken town hall, Onteora Central school gym, Woodstock school and the West Hurley school. Registration of voters will be held on Thursday, April 30 at the same poll centers.

Persons who did vote in the recent school bond issue must register for the annual budget and trustee election. Lists of currently registered voters will be available at each school building. Verification of registration can be made by a telephone call to any school building.

Principal Budget Items

Principal items in the budget showing present and new figures include: general control, $115,268-$115,268; instructional services, $1,132,310-$1,331,529; adult education, $5,600-same; operation of plant, $131,726-$166,518; mantenance of plant, $25,711-$25,912; fixed charges, $233,816-$273,602; capital outlay, $85,063-$68,497; auxiliary agencies, $362,578-$392,064.

Anticipated balance is $35,000 for each year.

General control increased from $107,154 to $115,268 contains the salaries of the superintendent and his assistants, salaries of secretaries, bookkeepers and clerks in the business office. It also provides for the cost of legal and auditing services, census, elections and equipment for the business office.

Instructional services, $1,331,529 from $1,132,310, is the largest single category of the budget. This includes salaries of teachers, principals and secretaries in the various buildings. Also included are the costs of instructional supplies, textbooks, and teaching materials. Increases in this category, Superintendent of Schools George R. Sullivan said, reflect additional teachers required by increasing enrollment, establishment of a competitive salary schedule and personnel required in the new buildings.

Operation of the plant, $166,518 from $131,726, covers wages of custodians, matron and other operational personnel. Other items are custodial supplies, and the costs of power, light, water, fuel and telephone service.

Maintenance of plant, up $211 from $25,711, provides for repair of buildings and upkeep of grounds, also repair and replacement of heating, lighting, plumbing and electrical equipment and the repair and replacement of furniture and instructional apparatus.

Other Agencies

Fixed charges, $273,445 from $233,816, relate to pension payments for teachers and Civil Service employes, and payments for rentals, insurance and affiliations with other school organizations. These charges are mandated by the Education Law.

Debt service $282,602 from $151,278, is concerned with payments of principal and interest on bonds and short term loans. The increase reflects the new debt caused by the construction of three new elementary buildings.

Capital outlay, $68,497 down from $85,063, includes cost of improving school grounds, heating, lighting and plumbing equipment; alteration of buildings, new library books, furniture and instructional equipment.

Auxiliary agencies, $392,064 from $362,578, include personnel and expenses for school libraries and health services. It also contains after-school athletics and transportation of pupils. The $6,250 voted as aid to town libraries has become a permanent part of the budget as a result of an affirmative vote by the qualified voters. The increase in this part of the budget is mainly due to the increase in library and health services necessitated by the new elementary schools.

Superintendent Sullivan said it was the opinion of the Board of Education that the proposed budget represents the amount of money necessary to maintain a good educational program.

Detailed copies of the budget are available for any taxpayer at the office in each school building.

The board accepted a petition submitted by qualified voters placing on the ballot a proposal to make the Onteora Central School Districts buildings available for political meetings.

Wayne Schubert was certified as bus driver for the Lake View Corp. for the remainder of the school year.

The Onteora District Arts Council expressed its appreciation for use of the school auditorium and made some suggestions for improvement to the stage and lighting equipment and Bennett P-TA offered active assistance in campaigns for bond issue proposals.

WALTER S. FOSTER
City Clerk

BOND AND CAPITAL NOTE ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF KINGSTON, NEW YORK, ADOPTED APRIL 7, 1964, AUTHORIZING THE RECONSTRUCTION AND RESURFACING OF PUBLIC STREETS OR PORTIONS THEREOF IN SAID CITY, STATING THE ESTIMATED MAXIMUM COST THEREOF IS $80,000, APPROPRIATING SAID AMOUNT THEREFOR AND AUTHORIZING THE ISSUANCE OF $4,000 CAPITAL NOTES TO PROVIDE THE DOWN PAYMENT AND $76,000 SERIAL BONDS, OF SAID CITY, TO FINANCE THE BALANCE OF SAID APPROPRIATION.

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE COMMON COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF KINGSTON, IN THE COUNTY OF ULSTER, NEW YORK (by the favorable vote of not less than two-thirds of all the members of said Council), AS FOLLOWS:

Section 1. The City of Kingston, in the County of Ulster, New York, is hereby authorized to reconstruct and resurface public streets or portions thereof in said City of Kingston, using flexible pavements other than sand and gravel, water bound macadam or penetration process with single surface treatment or with penetration macadam or plant mix bottom course and heavy duty bituminous concrete wearing surface, including curbs, gutters, drainage, landscaping, grading and improving the rights of way and improvements in connection therewith. The estimated maximum cost of said class of objects or purposes is $80,000, including preliminary costs and costs incidental thereto and the financing thereof, and the said amount is hereby appropriated therefor. The plan of financing includes the issuance of $4,000 capital notes to provide the required down payment and $76,000 serial bonds to finance the balance of said appropriation and the levy of a tax upon all the taxable real property in said City to pay the principal of said notes and bonds and the interest thereon.

Section 2. Pursuant to the provisions of the Local Finance Law, constituting Chapter 33-a of the Consolidated Laws of the State of New York, capital notes in the principal amount of $4,000 and serial bonds in the principal amount of $76,000, of the City of Kingston, are hereby authorized to be issued to finance the cost of said class of objects or purposes.

(a) The period of probable usefulness of the class of objects or purposes for which the bonds authorized by this ordinance are to be issued within the limitations of Section 11.00 a. 20. (b) of said Local Finance Law, is ten (10) years.

(b) Current funds are required by said Law to be provided as a down payment prior to the making of expenditures for a specific capital improvement from the proceeds of the bonds herein authorized or of any notes in anticipation of the sale of said bonds or from a fund into which such proceeds are paid, and the appropriate amount of such current funds will be made available from the proceeds of the $4,000 capital notes hereinabove authorized to be issued. The City Treasurer, chief fiscal officer of the City, is hereby authorized and directed to set aside said current funds and apply them solely to the said class of objects or purposes.

Section 4. Each of the bonds authorized by this ordinance and any bond anticipation notes issued in anticipation of the sale of such bonds, shall contain the recital of validity prescribed by §52.00 of the Local Finance Law and said bonds and any notes issued in anticipation of said bonds, shall be general obligations of the City of Kingston, payable as to both principal and interest by a general tax upon all the taxable real property within the City without limitation of rate or amount. The faith and credit of the City are hereby irrevocably pledged to the punctual payment of the principal of and interest on said bonds and provision shall be made annually in the budget of the City by appropriation for (a) the amortization and redemption of the bonds to mature in such year and (b) the payment of interest to be due and payable in such year.

Section 5. Subject to the provisions of this ordinance and of said Local Finance Law, and pursuant to the provisions of §30.00 relative to the authorization of the issuance of bond anticipation notes and of §50.00 and §50.00 to 60.00 of said Law, the powers and duties of the Common Council relative to prescribing the terms, form and contents and as to the sale and issuance of the bonds herein authorized and of any bond anticipation notes authorized and issued in anticipation of said bonds and the renewals thereof, are hereby delegated to the City Treasurer, chief fiscal officer of the City.

Section 6. It is further stated that the validity of the bonds authorized by this ordinance, and of any notes issued in anticipation of said bonds, may be contested only if:

(a) such obligations are authorized for an object or purpose for which the City is not authorized to expend money, or

(b) the provisions of law which should be complied with at the date of the publication of such ordinance, are not substantially complied with,

and an action, suit or proceeding contesting such validity, is commenced within twenty days after the date of such publication, or

(c) such obligations are authorized in violation of the provisions of the constitution.

Section 7. This Ordinance, which takes effect immediately, shall be published, in full, after approval by the Mayor, in "THE KINGSTON DAILY FREEMAN" and in the "KINGSTONIAN," the official newspapers of the City, together with a Notice in substantially the form as prescribed by §81.00 of the Local Finance Law.

BABSON on BUSINESS

By Roger W. Babson

Babson Discusses "Perfectionism"

BABSON PARK, Mass., April 24 — Most of my readers think there are so few "perfectionists" that it is a waste of good paper for me to write about them. But "perfectionist" is too often simply a professional word for "worrier", of whom there are a large number who read my weekly column.

Worry, the Real Crippler

One of my dearest friends died suddenly a few days ago of a coronary heart attack. He always wanted everything perfect; and consequently I could leave any work for him to do and I could forget it.

Since this friend's death, I have been thinking about perfectionism per se, and about worry as a "natural" corollary to perfectionism. Inasmuch as these two qualities so often coincide in the same person, my plea to my readers this week is to be content to do the best you can, but not to worry. Worry is the great depleter of strength and energy. This distinction must be made by all successful businessmen and women, by fathers and mothers.

Newton's Law of Action and Reaction

My present feeling is that a successful life must be a balanced one. We must remember that Sir Isaac Newton's Law of Action and Reaction applies to all our doings. This law seems to determine our health and our judgment, and hence our financial success. It is the reason it takes two people to make a successful married life.

Conversely, it is also the reason two people can make a married life unhappy and unsuccessful — throwing all relationships out of balance and resulting in business failure and unhappines. Hence, I believe in long engagements; and if a mistake has been made, a legal separation or divorce may be wise, especially if there is no mutual marital harmony.

What Jesus Taught

One of the chief teachings of Jess was that worry is a sin—that we should not be "anxious about the morrow" and that "sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." It is interesting that this thought was also fundamental in the teachings of Buddha, Confucius, Mohammed, and other great prophets throughout the world. In fact I understand that Jesus' Sermon on the Mount was based upon teachings of famous prophets who had lived many centuries before.

Not only this; but my friend Dr. Rufus Cole has written two large volumes to prove that there is nothing new under the sun, and that whatever happens today is dependent upon all that has happened for generations before. Whenever we try to pick out and eliminate fom the past one thing anywhere, we find this thing is involved with every other thing in the universe, said John Muir long ago. Surely many who have suffered untimely death have worried when there was no need of it. This might have been due to a desire to be a "perfectionist," or perhaps to a "lack of balance" in some other way.

What History Has Taught Me

I must not close this column without telling readers that the ablest physicians, scientists, bankers, and businessmen I have known did not worry. When thinking of this today, I cannot call to mind one who was a worrier. These men included Edison, Ford, Otis, Gillette, Pillsbury, Eastman, Lincoln of Lincoln Electric Co., and even J. P. Morgan. None of these men were worriers; they were content always to do the best they could, believing that all would turn out well in the end. I personally knew them all; they were all optimists at heart. They were not necessarily "perfectionists" — if so, we might never have heard of them! They were all "good guessers;" in fact, they excelled at guessing—and had the courage to stick to their guesses; All of the above convinces me that certainly, if worry is not a sin, it is at the very least contrary to the teachings of all history.

BABSON on BUSINESS

By Roger W. Babson

Babson Discusses "Perfectionism"

BABSON PARK, Mass., April 24 — Most of my readers think there are so few "perfectionists" that it is a waste of good paper for me to write about them. But "perfectionist" is too often simply a professional word for "worrier", of whom there are a large number who read my weekly column.

Worry, the Real Crippler

One of my dearest friends died suddenly a few days ago of a coronary heart attack. He always wanted everything perfect; and consequently I could leave any work for him to do and I could forget it.

Since this friend's death, I have been thinking about perfectionism per se, and about worry as a "natural" corollary to perfectionism. Inasmuch as these two qualities so often coincide in the same person, my plea to my readers this week is to be content to do the best you can, but not to worry. Worry is the great depleter of strength and energy. This distinction must be made by all successful businessmen and women, by fathers and mothers.

Newton's Law of Action and Reaction

My present feeling is that a successful life must be a balanced one. We must remember that Sir Isaac Newton's Law of Action and Reaction applies to all our doings. This law seems to determine our health and our judgment, and hence our financial success. It is the reason it takes two people to make a successful married life.

Conversely, it is also the reason two people can make a married life unhappy and unsuccessful — throwing all relationships out of balance and resulting in business failure and unhappines. Hence, I believe in long engagements; and if a mistake has been made, a legal separation or divorce may be wise, especially if there is no mutual marital harmony.

What Jesus Taught

One of the chief teachings of Jess was that worry is a sin—that we should not be "anxious about the morrow" and that "sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." It is interesting that this thought was also fundamental in the teachings of Buddha, Confucius, Mohammed, and other great prophets throughout the world. In fact I understand that Jesus' Sermon on the Mount was based upon teachings of famous prophets who had lived many centuries before.

Not only this; but my friend Dr. Rufus Cole has written two large volumes to prove that there is nothing new under the sun, and that whatever happens today is dependent upon all that has happened for generations before. Whenever we try to pick out and eliminate fom the past one thing anywhere, we find this thing is involved with every other thing in the universe, said John Muir long ago. Surely many who have suffered untimely death have worried when there was no need of it. This might have been due to a desire to be a "perfectionist," or perhaps to a "lack of balance" in some other way.

What History Has Taught Me

I must not close this column without telling readers that the ablest physicians, scientists, bankers, and businessmen I have known did not worry. When thinking of this today, I cannot call to mind one who was a worrier. These men included Edison, Ford, Otis, Gillette, Pillsbury, Eastman, Lincoln of Lincoln Electric Co., and even J. P. Morgan. None of these men were worriers; they were content always to do the best they could, believing that all would turn out well in the end. I personally knew them all; they were all optimists at heart. They were not necessarily "perfectionists" — if so, we might never have heard of them! They were all "good guessers;" in fact, they excelled at guessing—and had the courage to stick to their guesses; All of the above convinces me that certainly, if worry is not a sin, it is at the very least contrary to the teachings of all history.

Cabinet Accepts Conditions to End Laos Crisis

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Premier Souvanna Phouma announced today that he and his Cabinet have agreed to conditions laid down by right-wing rebels for settlement of the Laotian crisis. But coup leaders said they would not relinquish control of Vientiane until formation of a government they approve.

Want Rule Enlarged

The rightist military leaders, who seized control of the capital Sunday and put Prince Souvanna under house arrest, demanded that he enlarge his government. They demanded that he add to it "qualified personalities" — meaning right-wingers—recommended by the rebels.

Prince Souvanna said the coalition Cabinet of neutralists, accepted various points of the rightists and pro-Communists accepted various points of the demand and therefore "considers that there is a continuity in the exercise of its government powers."

The Cabinet "has accepted all clauses included in our motion," Gen. Kouprasith nAbhay, the leader of the coup, told a news conference. But his deputy, Gen. Siho Lamphouthakoul, said: "We will maintain military control of the city of Vientiane until the formation of a government according to our wishes."

Approval Not Certain

It was by no means certain that the agreement between Souvanna and the rightists would be approved by the pro-Communist Pathet Lao, an integral member of the coalition government. Its army controls a large part of Laos.

The decision must come from the Pathet Lao headquarters in Khang Khay, where Prince Souphanouvong, Pathet Lao leader and deputy premier, has holed up since he began a boycott of the government 14 months ago.

Souphanouvong in the past has repudiated a number of Cabinet decisions announced by Souvanna on the basis of agreement between him and his rightwing deputy premier, Gen. Phoumi Nosavan.

Asked whether the Pathet Lao had agreed to the right-wing demands, Kouprasith said: "This is not our business. It is up to Souvanna's coalition to handle this question."

Burglars Still Active in 2 County Sectors

Burglars were active in Woodstock and New Paltz sometime during Thursday night, entered a laundromat and a service station and made off with loot, according to State Police at Kingston sub-station.

Second in Two Weeks

Donahue's Service Station, Main Street, New Paltz, was hit a second time in two weeks. Earlier this month someone smashed a window in the station and stole pennies that had been left on the sill, according to the owner Frank Donhue.

Entry during last night was made through the same window, Donahue told The Freeman. The intruder- or intruders- pushed in a piece of cardboard and entered. A couple of silver dollars and two-dollar bills were taken from the office and cash was stolen from the register.

Donahue said the total loot was approximately $40. New Paltz police were notified. They investigated with Highland troopers.

Machines Ripped Open

The Woodstock Laundromat, 13 Yerry Hill Road, Bearsville, was entered sometime during the night. Fred Mower, owner of the establishment told The Freeman that three vending machines and a cigaret machine were ripped open and emptied of coins. He stated that two coin changers were rifled and damaged.

Mower said between $35 and $40 was taken, and damage to machines in the laundromat was estimated at about $500.

Kingston State Police are investigating.

Alarm for Burning Coop

A Third Avenue resident, who said he was getting rid of an unused chicken coop by burning it a safe distance from his home, attracted firemen to the scene Thursday when someone in the area apparently called them. Surprised at their arrival was Walter Murray, of 296 Third Avenue. A unit from Central Station answered the call at 6:37 p. m. A call at 10:28 a. m. today was for a brush fire near East Chester and Tammany Streets. Units from Central Station and the Wicks Company responded.

Area Librarians Meeting Today At Tarrytown

Mrs. Laura Long, county representative member of the executive board of the School Librarians of Southeastern New York, was among those scheduled as attending workshop sessions sponsored by the group today at the Hilton Inn, Tarrytown.

Public school personnel joined with librarians on all levels to make specific recommendations to improve library service to students from kindergarten through 12th grade in all the public and school libraries in the seven counties of southeastern New York.

Scheduled for introductions where they were to be seated at the head table were Mrs. Long; Miss Bernadine Smith, Dutchess County and Miss Margaret E. Wood, Orange County, all county representatives on the SLSENY executive board.

On Sept. 28, 1904, New York City police arrested a woman on Fifth Avenue for smoking a cigarette.

Progress Report Given on Plans For July Pageant

The girls who compete for the title of Miss New York State here in early July will again ride in 15 new, white Oldsmobile convertibles during the 3-day pageant. This attractive feature is made possible through the cooperation of Floyd A. DeWitt, president of DeWitt-Cadillac Oldsmobile of Kingston.

Other fine progress reports were made at the meeting of the Miss New York State Pageant Board of Directors Thursday night at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

The 15 convertibles and a station wagon are loaned to the local dealer by the manufacturer, but the local dealer prepares them for use and must store them when not in use. Each evening of the 3-day pageant the contestants will be transported from their headquarters at the hotel to the Kingston High School Auditorium in the open cars.

Herman G. Rafalowsky, chairman of the ticket committee, outlined plans to mail patron tickets about the middle of May which will be redeemable for the best seats in the auditorium up to June 15. The sale of patron tickets will be the only form of general public support for the major annual state-wide promotional event.

Carny Worker Is Charged With Slaying

NEW YORK (AP) — Police charged a former carnival worker today with the slaying of a 68-year-old widow who was found strangled and raped April 12 in her Bronx apartment lobby.

Bronx Asst. Dist. Atty. Joseph A. Cerbone said the youth, Norman W. Mayronne, 19, had made a lengthy statement admitting the killing of Mrs. Bertha Haas.

Mayronne was quoted by police as saying he encountered the woman in the lobby, asked for a 15-cent loan and then beat her when she rebuffed him.

Bread Bill Vetoed

Dutchess Pilot Walks Away From Crash in Midwest

Ralph H. Fisch, 34, of Route 3, Wappingers Falls, escaped with a few scratches. He was piloting a single-engine Cesna plane when he was forced to land. The plane hit the base of a tree and reportedly was wrecked.

Fisch, authorities reported, blamed mechanical failure for the crash. The plane was owned by the Poughkeepsie Aviation Service.

Cabinet Accepts Conditions to End Laos Crisis

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Premier Souvanna Phouma announced today that he and his Cabinet have agreed to conditions laid down by right-wing rebels for settlement of the Laotian crisis. But coup leaders said they would not relinquish control of Vientiane until formation of a government they approve.

Want Rule Enlarged

The rightist military leaders, who seized control of the capital Sunday and put Prince Souvanna under house arrest, demanded that he enlarge his government. They demanded that he add to it "qualified personalities" — meaning right-wingers—recommended by the rebels.

Prince Souvanna said the coalition Cabinet of neutralists, accepted various points of the rightists and pro-Communists accepted various points of the demand and therefore "considers that there is a continuity in the exercise of its government powers."

The Cabinet "has accepted all clauses included in our motion," Gen. Kouprasith nAbhay, the leader of the coup, told a news conference. But his deputy, Gen. Siho Lamphouthakoul, said: "We will maintain military control of the city of Vientiane until the formation of a government according to our wishes."

Approval Not Certain

It was by no means certain that the agreement between Souvanna and the rightists would be approved by the pro-Communist Pathet Lao, an integral member of the coalition government. Its army controls a large part of Laos.

The decision must come from the Pathet Lao headquarters in Khang Khay, where Prince Souphanouvong, Pathet Lao leader and deputy premier, has holed up since he began a boycott of the government 14 months ago.

Souphanouvong in the past has repudiated a number of Cabinet decisions announced by Souvanna on the basis of agreement between him and his rightwing deputy premier, Gen. Phoumi Nosavan.

Asked whether the Pathet Lao had agreed to the right-wing demands, Kouprasith said: "This is not our business. It is up to Souvanna's coalition to handle this question."

Burglars Still Active in 2 County Sectors

Burglars were active in Woodstock and New Paltz sometime during Thursday night, entered a laundromat and a service station and made off with loot, according to State Police at Kingston sub-station.

Second in Two Weeks

Donahue's Service Station, Main Street, New Paltz, was hit a second time in two weeks. Earlier this month someone smashed a window in the station and stole pennies that had been left on the sill, according to the owner Frank Donhue.

Entry during last night was made through the same window, Donahue told The Freeman. The intruder- or intruders- pushed in a piece of cardboard and entered. A couple of silver dollars and two-dollar bills were taken from the office and cash was stolen from the register.

Donahue said the total loot was approximately $40. New Paltz police were notified. They investigated with Highland troopers.

Machines Ripped Open

The Woodstock Laundromat, 13 Yerry Hill Road, Bearsville, was entered sometime during the night. Fred Mower, owner of the establishment told The Freeman that three vending machines and a cigaret machine were ripped open and emptied of coins. He stated that two coin changers were rifled and damaged.

Mower said between $35 and $40 was taken, and damage to machines in the laundromat was estimated at about $500.

Kingston State Police are investigating.

Alarm for Burning Coop

A Third Avenue resident, who said he was getting rid of an unused chicken coop by burning it a safe distance from his home, attracted firemen to the scene Thursday when someone in the area apparently called them. Surprised at their arrival was Walter Murray, of 296 Third Avenue. A unit from Central Station answered the call at 6:37 p. m. A call at 10:28 a. m. today was for a brush fire near East Chester and Tammany Streets. Units from Central Station and the Wicks Company responded.

Area Librarians Meeting Today At Tarrytown

Mrs. Laura Long, county representative member of the executive board of the School Librarians of Southeastern New York, was among those scheduled as attending workshop sessions sponsored by the group today at the Hilton Inn, Tarrytown.

Public school personnel joined with librarians on all levels to make specific recommendations to improve library service to students from kindergarten through 12th grade in all the public and school libraries in the seven counties of southeastern New York.

Scheduled for introductions where they were to be seated at the head table were Mrs. Long; Miss Bernadine Smith, Dutchess County and Miss Margaret E. Wood, Orange County, all county representatives on the SLSENY executive board.

On Sept. 28, 1904, New York City police arrested a woman on Fifth Avenue for smoking a cigarette.

Progress Report Given on Plans For July Pageant

The girls who compete for the title of Miss New York State here in early July will again ride in 15 new, white Oldsmobile convertibles during the 3-day pageant. This attractive feature is made possible through the cooperation of Floyd A. DeWitt, president of DeWitt-Cadillac Oldsmobile of Kingston.

Other fine progress reports were made at the meeting of the Miss New York State Pageant Board of Directors Thursday night at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

The 15 convertibles and a station wagon are loaned to the local dealer by the manufacturer, but the local dealer prepares them for use and must store them when not in use. Each evening of the 3-day pageant the contestants will be transported from their headquarters at the hotel to the Kingston High School Auditorium in the open cars.

Herman G. Rafalowsky, chairman of the ticket committee, outlined plans to mail patron tickets about the middle of May which will be redeemable for the best seats in the auditorium up to June 15. The sale of patron tickets will be the only form of general public support for the major annual state-wide promotional event.

Carny Worker Is Charged With Slaying

NEW YORK (AP) — Police charged a former carnival worker today with the slaying of a 68-year-old widow who was found strangled and raped April 12 in her Bronx apartment lobby.

Bronx Asst. Dist. Atty. Joseph A. Cerbone said the youth, Norman W. Mayronne, 19, had made a lengthy statement admitting the killing of Mrs. Bertha Haas.

Mayronne was quoted by police as saying he encountered the woman in the lobby, asked for a 15-cent loan and then beat her when she rebuffed him.

Bread Bill Vetoed

Dutchess Pilot Walks Away From Crash in Midwest

A Dutchess County pilot walked away from a wrecked plane Thursday after the aircraft crashed in a cornfield three miles east of Lancaster, Ohio.

Ralph H. Fisch, 34, of Route 3, Wappingers Falls, escaped with a few scratches. He was piloting a single-engine Cesna plane when he was forced to land. The plane hit the base of a tree and reportedly was wrecked.

Fisch, authorities reported, blamed mechanical failure for the crash. The plane was owned by the Poughkeepsie Aviation Service.
